GERMANS THROWN BACK SOUTH OF SOISSONS

Counter Attacks by the French Are Successful and German Efforts to Cross the Marne Are Repulsed---Allies Still Hold Rheims.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, June 1.—The Germans facing the Allies on the left flank of the Aisne-Marne battle front have been thrown back upon the Crise river and the French have retaken Chaudin and Viezy, south of Soissons, by a series of powerful counter attacks, the French war office announced today.

The French captured several hundred prisoners.

The Germans have failed to extend southward their gain on the Marne. All efforts to force a crossing were repulsed.

The Germans now hold a front of about thirteen miles on the northern bank of the Marne between Vereneuil and Chateau Thierry.

On the line between Dormans and Rheims fresh fighting has developed, but Rheims still remains in the hands of the Allied forces.

(Dormans is 18 miles southwest of Rheims on the Marne. British forces are fighting with the French near Rheims.)

JUDGE PARKER IN NEW LAW FIRM

Arthur McCausland One of Members of New Firm of Parker, Marshall & Randall of New York City.

Announcement was made in New York city today of the formation of the new legal partnership of Parker, Marshall & Randall, with offices at 111 Broadway.

The senior member of the new firm is Alton B. Parker, a beloved son of Ulster, who won the distinction of being the standard bearer of the Democratic party in 1904.

Other members of the firm are H. Snowden Marshall, formerly a partner of Senator O'Gorman and George Gordon Battle, afterward United States District Attorney of New York. C. Walter Randall, a young Missourian, a Harvard man well known in legal circles in New York, Brooklyn and Queens, and Arthur McCausland, formerly of Kingston, N. Y., and therefore the only one in the firm other than the illustrious senior member, whose career has a special interest for Ulster Countyists.

Mr. McCausland attended the old Ulster Academy, and graduated at fifteen years of age. He then studied law with Howard Chipp, and after his admission to the bar was employed in the office of Jenkins & Fitch. Soon after Judge Parker's election to the chief judgeship of the court of appeals, Mr. McCausland returned to the court of appeals as secretary to chief Judge Cullen. But the next year he resigned to accept the place of managing attorney in a new law firm headed by Judge Parker in New York. Mr. McCausland was one of the fourteen original members who organized the Ulster County Society in the City of New York.

His elevation to junior partnership in the firm of Parker, Marshall & Randall, is the reward of eighteen years active and faithful service with Judge Parker.

COST $3 TO KICK OFFICER KUEHN

Friday evening about 10:30 while Officer Kuehn was on duty near the Kohler Sanitarium on Wall street, he ran across Sam Johnson, 42 years old, who was very drunk. The officer gave Sam a chance to go home, which he refused and grew abusive and ended up by suddenly kicking Officer Kuehn in the stomach. The officer then placed Samuel under arrest and he spent the night in jail. This morning he was arraigned in police court. It developed that he has been employed at the sanitarium for about two months. He was fined $3 which he paid.

Real Music at Point.

Patrons of Kingston Point have for some time past enjoyed themselves at that delightful outing spot in Kingston in spite of, not because of, the music, so called. To all such it will come as very good news that on Decoration Day those who visited the Point has a real treat in the form of a program of patriotic music, both old time favorites and those officially recognized as our national anthem, national hymn, etc., and the new patriotic music of this war being admirably played by the Colonial City band. Kingstonians may now well feel that we have at the Point a real part. Until July 4th, the Colonial band will play at the Point every Sunday afternoon, and patriotic music will occupy a conspicuous part of each Sunday afternoon's program. The band concerts will be more frequent after the first of July.

CHURCH WELCOMES ITS NEW PASTOR

Reception Given to the Rev. L. Appeldoorn and Family by the Reformed Church at Port Ewen.

On Friday night a reception was given by the members and friends of the Port Ewen Reformed Church to their new pastor, Rev. L. Appeldoorn and family. The reception was held in the church, which had been beautifully decorated for the occasion by the officers of the Sunday school. At 8 o'clock the committee appointed by the consistory, consisting of Elvin Hutchings and W. A. Van Derveer, went to the parsonage and invited the minister and his wife to accompany them to the church. On their arrival they found a large company of people assembled to greet them. Andrew M. Taylor, chairman of the meeting, called for order and invited the Rev. C. H. Polhemus, a former pastor, to offer prayer. After prayer Mr. Taylor introduced the Rev. and Mrs. Appeldoorn to the assemblage, and in response to the introduction Rev. Appeldoorn made a very appropriate and fitting address, which was enthusiastically received.

The chairman then called in every department of the church and Sunday school to extend a welcome to their new pastor and wife.

Hez. Houghtaling in behalf of the Sunday school and Home department.

Mrs. Robert Houghtaling in behalf of the Missionary Society.

Mrs. George Fairbrother in behalf of the Ladies' Aid Society.

Miss Evelyn Bugg in behalf of the Christian Endeavor.

Miss Cleon Ellsworth in behalf of the Dorcas Society.

Lester Ferguson in behalf of the Brotherhood.

A. M. Taylor in behalf of the Pastor's Bible class.

The Rev. C. H. Polhemus, a former pastor, extended a cordial welcome to both as resident minister of this place.

The social part of the program was the welcome extended by the Rev. E. A. Bookhout, of the M. E. Church, in behalf of himself and church. The remarks made by the Rev. Bookhout were most hospitable and pleasing and the impression he made on the people of brotherly cooperation in Christian work assured the Rev. Appeldoorn of the warm place he had in his heart for all true Christian fellow laborers in the Master's cause.

The Rev. George B. Mead of Connelly brought greetings from his church and people and made a most interesting and pleasing address.

The last speaker on the program to bring greetings from his church and congregation was the Rev. C. Van Oostenbrugge of Ulster Park. He was very interesting and entertaining and is always a welcome guest among us on all occasions.

Mr. and Mrs. Appeldoorn responded to the introduction in a most appropriate and feeling manner and thanked the people one and all for expressions of esteem and loyal support, and then Mr. Appeldoorn offered prayer.

At the conclusion of the program an invitation was given to all present to meet the minister and his wife, and two officials of the church introduced those present as they came forward.

After the introduction was over refreshments were served, bringing to a close a most enjoyable time to both pastor and people and where Christian fellowship prevailed.

Ten More Cases of Measles.

Decoration Day and Friday resulted in ten new cases of measles being reported to the health board. This brings the total number of cases since April 1, close to the 600 mark.

OUR BOYS ARRIVE IN CAMP WADSWORTH

Assigned to the 51st Pioneer Infantry, the Old Tenth N. Y. N. G.—Plenty to Eat in Camp—"Southern Hospitality" That Makes Dividends.

Camp Wadsworth, Spartanburg, S. C., May 29.—Well, we're here. We had such an exciting trip down that I forgot what date it was this morning and dated my card to you, "May 28, '18." But it is no wonder. To begin with we had a fine sendoff at home and many a remark was made on the train by the boys about how the people of Ulster county are backing up her boys. We had a long wait at Weehawken. We had to travel in day coaches all the way down. At Washington we had a stop over of two hours. Things seemed to have got balled up, because while at Washington we could have all gotten off and got something to eat at the Red Cross station, but not knowing how long the train was going to lay there we had to rush up and rush back to the train. We had to go about 17 hours once without anything to drink and about half the time we did not have much water to drink.

Although we did not have sleepers, the boys did not grumble much. They took everything good naturedly. The Greene county boys did not have sleepers either. Our train was very late so we did not reach camp until Wednesday morning at 4:50.

The Red Cross met us at different stations along the way and gave us post cards and things to eat. While we were laying at one station, some of the boys bought things to eat, and from what I heard, paid 70 cents for a quart of milk and 50 cents was paid for a whole pie. These cases were promptly reported to a Red Cross nurse who said, she would report it that evening.

I guess all the Kingston bunch and I think most of the boys from Division 1 and 2 are in the Pioneer Infantry. For the present Heinie and I are in the same company. We were given our cot and blankets and mess kit this morning. I guess tomorrow we will get examined, also vaccinated and our first inoculation. Heinie sleeps next to me. Eight fellows in a tent.

Today, Wortman, myself and Fitzgerald were given the honors of performing kitchen police duty. We were such experts at it that they thought we used to do it before we came to camp.

I saw some of the Kingston boys in Company M and they were surely glad to see the boys from the old home town.

Heinie is so heavy that the first canvas cot he was given would not stand up under the weight so he was given a stronger one. We will get iron cots later. We will be quarantined in for about 10 days as soon as we are examined. We will not be allowd off of our street while under quarantine.

Anyone who says the boys are not being fed good at camp, does not know what he is talking about. For supper we had ice tea, fried potatoes, bread and jam, tomato soup and peaches. Will close for this time. Best regards to all the folks at the office.

My address for the present is:
PRIVATE EUGENE CORNWELL,
Co. F, 51st Pioneer Infantry,
Camp Wadsworth,
Spartanburg, S. C.

P. S.—Anyone sending mail to the boys should be sure and put "Camp Wadsworth" in the address, because if it addressed to just Spartanburg, they are not liable to receive it. Heine's address is the same as mine. About 3 o'clock Tuesday morning Heinie, Dawe and myself sat out on the car platform to see the state of Virginia by moonlight as we were not sleepy. When we stopped at any place along the way, we wanted to sing a little trio for the boys, but they evidently did not like it because they threw things at us out of the window and told us where we ought to go.

The Newburgh News Says:

That profiteering of the worst kind exists in at least one, if not several of the towns on the route from Washington, D. C., to Spartanburgh, S. C., where the latest contingent of Newburgh selects are located, has been brought to light through letters received in Newburgh today. Dansville, Va., is named by the selects as being the place where they were actually robbed when they offered to pay for food, all that on board train having been used up. "We asked for milk and were told it was 70 cents a quart, but what could we do, we had to have it," writes one select. Other prices demanded and paid by the "boys" who have given their all to their country, were as follows: Sandwich, one dollar each; piece of pie, 50 cents; ice cream cone, 15 cents; bar of chocolate, 15 cents; grape fruit, 40 cents each. That such conditions should exist within 140 miles of Richmond and less than 40 miles from the North Carolina boundary is unbelievable. The profiteering town is in Pittsylvania county, and has about 8,500 people.

Sub-Chasers in Creek.

About 7 o'clock Friday evening some half dozen sub-chasers pulled into Rondout creek and tied up for the night, leaving early this morning. It was said they came from New York and were on their way to the great lakes.

Private Ashby's present address is "Headquarter Company, 107th Infantry, American Expeditionary Forces, Overseas" and he would be glad to hear from his friends. Private Ashby enlisted with Company M and left Kingston with that company.

BINCH ENJOYS LIFE OVERSEAS

Only Drawback Seems to Be That He Cannot Buy Good Ink in France—Two Cheerful Letters.

Roderick MaCrae Binch, whose letters home are published in excerpt, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest J. Binch of this city, enlisted in the artillery (coast) service at Boston last December. On March 15 he was sent to Camp Merritt and immediately after across the sea. His father is employed as cashier in the Armour offices on Dederick street.

From two letters received at his home, 261 Flatbush avenue, dated somewhere in France, respectively April 14 and May 2, are taken all except private matters he has written:

Somewhere in France,
Battery A, 55th Artillery,
April 14, 1918.

Dear Father, Mother and Sisters:

Well parents, here I am. We had some trip from the good old U. S. A. to where we are. Our trip was made in good time considering some mix-ups in the way of travelling. We left America some time ago and sailed on a very good boat which made good time. Our trip was made in fine weather excepting the last day on board. Our meals were fair, considering the hard times and the work of getting them ready.

On our way through England the trip was fine and in the villages and towns I saw some of the prettiest sights I had ever before seen. The farms, gardens and houses are beautiful, Pop. Gee, but I could not keep my eyes off them.

England must be a fine country in times of peace. The trains are very nice and go very fast. The engines are odd looking, but are good travelers. We got a very nice cup of coffee furnished by the English Red Cross at one of the towns where we stopped for that purpose.

The funniest thing about it was that town is where Uncle Arthur is living. I did not know it until we were a few miles on our way again.

I could tell you a story a mile long, but military news must be kept from every one. We are in France and all its seems to do is to rain, rain rain. And it's mud, mud, mud. All the people wear wooden shoes, and my, what a funny noise they make on the stones. The people like us very well, and they are nice people. The houses are old-fashioned but warm. They use oxen. They have horses, and nice ones, too.

I am trying to learn French, and very hard it is in the beginning, but lots of words are almost like ours and spelled quite the same way.

Have seen a few aeroplanes and airships. They make an awful noise when going through the air and it is funny to see some when they land on the water and skim along. I saw one loop the loop four times in England. Everyone thought it was falling, but when it gently sailed away there was a big hurrah. Our company cooks are cooking our meals and we are fed fine, wholesome food. I have plenty of everything except a few khaki handkerchiefs. I can't get one any place here.

On Active Service with the American Expeditionary Force,
May 2, 1918.

Dear Pop:

I was sure pleased to get your letters and I am sure that you will get my first one in a day or two from this date. I am well and doing fine. I go to gun classes every day and I am in hopes of passing the examination of second class gunner.

We are having fine warm weather, and it seems so nice to have the sun with us. Before going further I want to say that the ink gave out and I'll have to use this pencil. Fountain pen ink cannot be got here and if I use the ink they have over here it will ruin the pen, and as the penpoints are so expensive, I believe it advisable to use a pencil to write the letters and the pen to address the envelope.

I will send you one of those army newspapers soon. They are a very fair paper and contain plenty of news from America and other countries.

We had tent pitching today and a long hike so as to keep in shape for our share in a grand drive which will finish the Kaiser for good. They are about finished and the French soldiers returning for a few days' rest say they are all in (the Germans).

The English and French captured a large number of prisoners and the Germans were all young boys and old men wearing civilians' clothes. They were surrendering by the thousands. Well, Pop, I'll ring off for the present hoping you are all well and that I will see you soon. Did you get my other letter? With love and kisses to all I'll remain your loving son.

RODERICK MACRAE BINCH,
Battery A, 55th Art'l, C. A. C.
American Expeditionary Forces.

BRIEF REVIEW OF THE BATTLE NEWS

The French recaptured important ground, throwing the Germans back upon the Crise river.

All of the German efforts to force a passage of the Marne river have been repulsed.

The allied forces still cling tenaciously to Rheims, although the Germans are making savage assaults along the line of Dormans and Rheims.

The Germans have apparently been able to extend their front in the district immediately north of the Marne, but they have not yet reached the Paris-Chalons railway nor have they been able to fight their way into Chateau Thierry, although the French positions in that sector have been violently shelled.

Although the Germans made a big gain in their dash southward from the heights of the Aisne, reaching the Marne, they are still about 15 miles from the line of the farthest advance they made in the fall of 1914, when Von Kluck's hordes were driving against Paris.

The Germans have advanced about 25 miles since they launched their drive on the Oisne front last Monday mroning.

From the preparations the Germans are making along the left flank and judging from the trend the battle has taken some French military critics believe that another direct drive towards Paris may be imminent. If the Germans cannot break through and reach the city they at least hope to get close enough so that they can bombard it with their long range naval guns.

With the battle zone now extended until it touches the Picardy front and the Marne the lines of the German salient now run roughly as follows:

East flank: From the Marne in a northeasterly direction past St. Gemme, Romigny, and Rheims to Brimont.

The Germans are still making terrific efforts along the entire battle line. However, they are now face to face with a great reserve army which General Foch massed to protect the Paris-Chalons railway.

This was the seventy-third day of the German grand offensive, but for about five weeks a comparative lull has existed on the Picardy and Flanders fields.

COTTON NEXT TO BE CONTROLLED

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 1.—An order virtually commandeering the entire cotton output of the country is momentarily expected by men in the cotton industry, it was learned today. Members of the war industries board refused to deny that such a step was contemplated, and it was evident that the extensive cotton needs of this government and the Allies had produced a situation that was acute and which could be relieved only by a drastic move.

The formal announcement that John Scott of Chicago has been appointed textile administrator of cotton fabrics was expected this afternoon, and with this the first step toward a commandeering order will have been taken, it was believed. It was said to be probable that the same procedure that attended the taking over of the wool supply would be followed and that after the commandeering, when the government needs have been determined, the less essential industries will then be taken care of.

SIX CENT FARE TO BE DISCUSSED

The regular monthly meeting of the city fathers Tuesday evening promises to be an interesting one. Among other matters to come up is said to be the question of a six cent trolley fare in Kingston. It is understood that the trolley road will have a representative present to discuss the matter and try to have the city fathers go on record as approving the step.

The question of redistricting the wards of the city to care for the general election in November will also come up at the meeting. With the women voting it will be impossible to handle the vote in the wards as districted at present and many of the wards will have to have two polling places instead of one.

There may also be another echo of the theater ordinance question at the meeting.

NO NEWS OF LOST TRANSPORT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 1.—Up to noon today no additional word had been received from Vice-Admiral Sims regarding the loss of the transport President Lincoln. At the navy department it was stated that as soon as definite word reached here it would be made public. It was said, however, that it was unlikely that any further information would be forthcoming until the survivors reached land which might not be until late today or tomorrow. No wireless is used in the submarine zone. In the absence of any definite word officials were hopeful that there would be few if any casualties.

Services at St. Mary's Church.

The solemnity of Corpus Christi will be observed on Sunday at St. Mary's Church, and a solemn mass will be celebrated. There will be a procession of young children and the services will be most impressive.

FATAL OUTCOME OF A DREAM

A D. & H. R. R. Trainman Dreams of Wreck, Jumps From Window and Breaks His Back.

William O'Neil, aged 37 years, a D. & H. R. R. trainman, residing with his sister at Oneonta, last Wednesday morning about 3:15 o'clock, doubtless while suffering from the effects of a dream that a wreck was impending, raised the window of his sleeping room on the second floor of his home, and jumped to the ground, sustaining permanent injuries, his back being broken. The attending physician gives no hopes whatever for his recovery, although he may linger months and perhaps years.

Mr. O'Neil was in good health and spirits the night previous, visiting with his sister before retiring. In conversation after the accident he admitted an indistant recollection of alarm lest he be caught under the cars but did not remember what he did to avoid the danger. He has on more than one previous occasion leaped out of bed with a cry at fears created by dreams and there is little doubt that this explains his conduct.

The case has many distressing features. He has a family of five children, the oldest being 13 years of age and the youngest six. His wife died a year ago.

MEN IN CHARGE OF FREIGHT RATES

The director general of railroads announces the appointment by the regional directors of the following traffic committees, which will deal in the respective territories with all questions of freight rates arising under General Order No. 280:

Freight Traffic Committee, Eastern Territory, B. Campbell, Chairman, 143 Liberty St., New York.

Central District Coal and Coke Committee, J. C. Venning, Chairman, Pennsylvania Station, Pittsburgh, Pa.

The director general invites the cooperation of the shipping public in working out a satisfactory adjustment of freight rates on the higher levels now necessary.

All shippers who desire to make suggestions as to the maintenance of established differentials on the readjustment of freight rates under General Order No. 28 may present their views through the freight traffic officers of the railroads serving them, but if shippers feel that after presenting such matters to their home roads that they want their views given further consideration, the freight committee for their territory or district involved will be glad to hear and consider any proposal or suggestion the shippers have to offer.

GERMANS THROWN BACK SOUTH OF SOISSONS

Counter Attacks by the French Are Successful and German Efforts to Cross the Marne Are Repulsed---Allies Still Hold Rheims.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, June 1.—The Germans facing the Allies on the left flank of the Aisne-Marne battle front have been thrown back upon the Crise river and the French have retaken Chaudin and Viezy, south of Soissons, by a series of powerful counter attacks, the French war office announced today.

The French captured several hundred prisoners.

The Germans have failed to extend southward their gain on the Marne. All efforts to force a crossing were repulsed.

The Germans now hold a front of about thirteen miles on the northern bank of the Marne between Vereneuil and Chateau Thierry.

On the line between Dormans and Rheims fresh fighting has developed, but Rheims still remains in the hands of the Allied forces.

(Dormans is 18 miles southwest of Rheims on the Marne. British forces are fighting with the French near Rheims.)

JUDGE PARKER IN NEW LAW FIRM

Arthur McCausland One of Members of New Firm of Parker, Marshall & Randall of New York City.

Announcement was made in New York city today of the formation of the new legal partnership of Parker, Marshall & Randall, with offices at 111 Broadway.

The senior member of the new firm is Alton B. Parker, a beloved son of Ulster, who won the distinction of being the standard bearer of the Democratic party in 1904.

Other members of the firm are H. Snowden Marshall, formerly a partner of Senator O'Gorman and George Gordon Battle, afterward United States District Attorney of New York. C. Walter Randall, a young Missourian, a Harvard man well known in legal circles in New York, Brooklyn and Queens, and Arthur McCausland, formerly one of the only one in the firm other than the illustrious senior member, whose career has a special interest for Ulster Countyists.

Mr. McCausland attended the old Ulster Academy, and graduated at fifteen years of age. He then studied law with Howard Chipp, and after his admission to the bar was employed in the office of Jenkins & Fitch. Soon after Judge Parker's election to the chief judgeship of the court of appeals, Mr. McCausland returned to the court of appeals as secretary to chief Judge Cullen. But the next year he resigned to accept the place of managing attorney in a new law firm headed by Judge Parker in New York. Mr. McCausland was one of the fourteen original members who organized the Ulster County Society in the City of New York.

His elevation to junior partnership in the firm of Parker, Marshall & Randall, is the reward of eighteen years active and faithful service with Judge Parker.

COST $3 TO KICK OFFICER KUEHN

Friday evening about 10:30 while Officer Kuehn was on duty near the Kohler Sanitarium on Wall street, he ran across Sam Johnson, 42 years old, who was very drunk. The officer gave Sam a chance to go home, which he refused and grew abusive and ended up by suddenly kicking Officer Kuehn in the stomach. The officer then placed Samuel under arrest and he spent the night in jail. This morning he was arraigned in police court. It developed that he has been employed at the sanitarium for about two months. He was fined $3 which he paid.

CHURCH WELCOMES ITS NEW PASTOR

Reception Given to the Rev. L. Appeldoorn and Family by the Reformed Church at Port Ewen.

On Friday night a reception was given by the members and friends of the Port Ewen Reformed Church to their new pastor, Rev. L. Appeldoorn and family. The reception was held in the church, which had been beautifully decorated for the occasion by the officers of the Sunday school. At 8 o'clock the committee appointed by the consistory, consisting of Elvin Hutchings and W. A. Van Derveer, went to the parsonage and invited the minister and his wife to accompany them to the church. On their arrival they found a large company of people assembled to greet them. Andrew M. Taylor, chairman of the meeting, called for order and invited the Rev. C. H. Polhemus, a former pastor, to offer prayer. After prayer Mr. Taylor introduced the Rev. and Mrs. Appeldoorn to the assemblage, and in response to the introduction Rev. Appeldoorn made a very appropriate and fitting address, which was enthusiastically received.

The chairman then called in every department of the church and Sunday school to extend a welcome to their new pastor and wife.

Hez. Houghtaling in behalf of the Sunday school and Home department.

Mrs. Robert Houghtaling in behalf of the Missionary Society.

Mrs. George Fairbrother in behalf of the Ladies' Aid Society.

Miss Evelyn Bugg in behalf of the Christian Endeavor.

Miss Cleon Ellsworth in behalf of the Dorcas Society.

Lester Ferguson in behalf of the Brotherhood.

A. M. Taylor in behalf of the Pastor's Bible class.

The Rev. C. H. Polhemus, a former pastor, extended a cordial welcome to both as resident minister of this place.

The social part of the program was the welcome extended by the Rev. E. A. Bookhout, of the M. E. Church, in behalf of himself and church. The remarks made by the Rev. Bookhout were most hospitable and pleasing and the impression he made on the people of brotherly cooperation in Christian work assured the Rev. Appeldoorn of the warm place he had in his heart for all true Christian fellow laborers in the Master's cause.

The Rev. George B. Mead of Connelly brought greetings from his church and people and made a most interesting and pleasing address.

The last speaker on the program to bring greetings from his church and congregation was the Rev. C. Van Oostenbrugge of Ulster Park. He wal, very interesting and entertaining and is always a welcome guest among us on all occasions.

Mr. and Mrs. Appeldoorn responded to the introduction in a most appropriate and feeling manner and thanked the people one and all for expressions of esteem and loyal support, and, then Mr. Appeldoorn offered prayer.

At the conclusion of the program an invitation was given to all present to meet the minister and his wife, and two officials of the church introduced those present as they came forward.

After the introduction was over refreshments were served, bringing to a close a most enjoyable time to both pastor and people and where Christian fellowship prevailed.

Ten More Cases of Measles.

Decoration Day and Friday resulted in ten new cases of measles being reported to the health board. This brings the total number of cases since April 1, close to the 600 mark.

OUR BOYS ARRIVE IN CAMP WADSWORTH

Assigned to the 51st Pioneer Infantry, the Old Tenth N. Y. N. G.—Plenty to Eat in Camp—"Southern Hospitality" That Makes Dividends.

Camp Wadsworth, Spartanburg, S. C., May 29.—Well, we're here. We had such an exciting trip down that I forgot what date it was this morning and dated my card to you, "May 28, '18." But it is no wonder. To begin with we had a fine sendoff at home and many a remark was made on the train by the boys about how the people of Ulster county are backing up her boys. We had a long wait at Weehawken. We had to travel in day coaches all the way down. At Washington we had a stop over of two hours. Things seemed to have got balled up, because while at Washington we could have all gotten off and got something to eat at the Red Cross station, but not knowing how long the train was going to lay there we had to rush up and rush back to the train. We had to go about 17 hours once without anything to drink and about half the time we did not have much water to drink.

Although we did not have sleepers, the boys did not grumble much. They took everything good naturedly. The Greene county boys did not have sleepers either. Our train was very late so we did not reach camp until Wednesday morning at 4:50.

The Red Cross met us at different stations along the way and gave us post cards and things to eat. While we were laying at one station, some of the boys bought things to eat, and from what I heard, paid 70 cents for a quart of milk and 50 cents was paid for a whole pie. These cases were promptly reported to a Red Cross nurse who said, she would report it that evening.

I guess all the Kingston bunch and I think most of the boys from Division 1 and 2 are in the Pioneer Infantry. For the present Heinie and I are in the same company. We were given our cot and blankets and mess kit this morning. I guess tomorrow we will get examined, also vaccinated and our first inoculation. Heinie sleeps next to me. Eight fellows in a tent.

Today, Wortman, myself and Fitzgerald were given the honors of performing kitchen police duty. We thought we used to do it before we came to camp.

I saw some of the Kingston boys in Company M and they were surely glad to see the boys from the old home town.

Heinie is so heavy that the first canvas cot he was given would not stand up under the weight so he was given a stronger one. We will get iron cots later. We will be quarantined in for about 10 days as soon as we are examined. We will not be allowed off of our street while under quarantine.

Anyone who says the boys are not being fed good at camp, does not know what he is talking about. For supper we had ice tea, fried potatoes, bread and jam, tomato soup and peaches. Will close for this time. Best regards to all the folks at the office.

My address for the present is:
PRIVATE EUGENE CORNWELL,
Co. F. 51st Pioneer Infantry.
Camp Wadsworth.
Spartanburg, S. C.

P. S.—Anyone sending mail to the boys should be sure and put "Camp Wadsworth" in the address, because if it addressed to just Spartanburg, they are not liable to receive it. Heinie's address is the same as mine. About 2 o'clock Tuesday morning, Heinie, Dawe and myself sat out on the car platform to see the state of Virginia by moonlight as we were not sleepy. When we stopped at any place along the way, we wanted to sing a little trio for the boys, but they evidently did not like it, because they threw things at us out of the window and told us where we ought to go.

The Newburgh News Says:

That profiteering of the worst kind exists in at least one, if not several of the towns on the route from Washington, D. C., to Spartanburgh, S. C., where the latest contingent of Newburgh selects are located, has been brought to light through letters received in Newburgh today. Dansville, Va., is named by the selects as being the place where they were actually robbed when they offered to pay for food, all that on board train having been used up. "We asked for milk and were told it was 70 cents a quart, but what could we do, we had to have it," writes one select. Other prices demanded and paid by the "boys" who have given their all to their country, were as follows: Sandwich, one dollar each; piece of pie, 50 cents; ice cream cone, 15 cents; bar of chocolate, 15 cents; grape fruit, 40 cents each. That such conditions should exist within 140 miles of Richmond and less than 40 miles from the North Carolina boundary is unbelievable. The profiteering town is in Pittsylvania county, and has about 8,500 people.

Sub-Chasers in Creek.

About 7 o'clock Friday evening some half dozen sub-chasers pulled into Rondout creek and tied up for the night, leaving early this morning. It was said they came from New York and were on their way to the great lakes.

IN THE SERVICE OF OUR COUNTRY

PRIVATE MICHAEL ALTAMARI.

Michael Altamari is a member of Company B, 302nd Ammunition train, Camp Upton, and is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Altamari of No. 15 Gill street. Mrs. Maines of No. 193 Greenkill avenue received word on Friday of the safe arrival of her son, Clarence, somewhere in France. Word has also been received of the arrival at the same time of Arthur Sutton of Greenkill avenue. Both Kingston boys were formerly members of Company M.

Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Ashby of Ponckhockie street have received word from their son, Private Edwin Ashby, of his safe arrival overseas. Private Ashby's present address is "Headquarter Company, 107th Infantry, American Expeditionary Forces, Overseas" and he would be glad to hear from his friends. Private Ashby enlisted with Company M and left Kingston with that company.

BINCH ENJOYS LIFE OVERSEAS

Only Drawback Seems to Be That He Cannot Buy Good Ink in France—Two Cheerful Letters.

Roderick MacCrae Binch, whose letters home are published in excerpt, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest J. Binch of this city, enlisted in the artillery (coast) service at Boston last December. On March 15 he was sent to Camp Merritt and immediately after across the sea. His father is employed as cashier in the Armour offices on Dederick street.

From two letters received at his home, 261 Flatbush avenue, dated somewhere in France, respectively April 14 and May 2, are taken all except private matters he has written:

Somewhere in France,
Battery A, 55th Artillery,
April 14, 1918.

Dear Father, Mother and Sisters:

Well parents, here I am. We had some trip from the good old U. S. A. to where we are. Our trip was made in good time considering some mix-ups in the way of travelling. We left America some time ago and sailed on a very good boat which made good time. Our trip was made in fine weather excepting the last day on board. Our meals were fair, considering the hard times and the work of getting them ready.

On our way through England the trip was fine and in the villages and towns I saw some of the prettiest sights I had ever before seen. The farms, gardens and houses are beautiful, Pop. Gee, but I could not keep my eyes off them.

England must be a fine country in times of peace. The trains are very nice and go very fast. The engines are odd looking, but are good travelers. We got a very nice cup of coffee furnished by the English Red Cross at one of the towns where we stopped for that purpose.

The funniest thing about it was that town is where Uncle Arthur is living. I did not know it until we were a few miles on our way again.

I could tell you a story a mile long, but military news must be kept from every one. We are in France and all its seems to do is to rain, rain rain. And it's mud, mud, mud. All the people wear wooden shoes, and my, what a funny noise they make on the stones. The people like us very well, and they are nice people. The houses are old-fashioned but warm. They use oxen. They have horses, and nice ones, too.

I am trying to learn French, and very hard it is in the beginning, but lots of words are almost like ours and spelled quite the same way.

Have seen a few aeroplanes and airships. They make an awful noise when going through the air and it is funny to see some when they land on the water and skim along. I saw one loop the loop four times in England. Everyone thought it was falling, but when it gently sailed away there was a big hurrah. Our company cooks are cooking our meals and we are fed fine, wholesome food. I have plenty of everything except a few khaki handkerchiefs. I can't get one any place here.

On Active Service with the American Expeditionary Force,
May 2, 1918.

Dear Pop:

I was sure pleased to get your letters and I am sure that you will get my first one in a day or two from this date. I am well and doing fine. I go to gun classes every day and I am in hopes of passing the examination of second class gunner.

We are having fine warm weather, and it seems so nice to have the sun with us. Before going further I want to say that the ink gave out and I'll have to use this pencil. Fountain pen ink cannot be got here and if I use the ink they have over here it will ruin the pen, and as the penpoints are so expensive, I believe it advisable to use a pencil to write the letters and the pen to address the envelope.

I will send you one of those army newspapers soon. They are a very fair paper and contain plenty of news from America and other countries.

We had tent pitching today and a long hike so as to keep in shape for our share in a grand drive which will finish the Kaiser for good. They are about finished and the French soldiers returning for a few days' rest say they are all in (the Germans).

The English and French captured a large number of prisoners and the Germans were all young boys and old men wearing civilians' clothes. They were surrendering by the thousands. Well, Pop, I'll ring off for the present hoping you are all well and that I will see you soon. Did you get my other letter? With love and kisses to all I'll remain your loving son.

BRIEF REVIEW OF THE BATTLE NEWS

The French recaptured important ground, throwing the Germans back upon the Crise river.

All of the German efforts to force a passage of the Marne river have been repulsed.

The allied forces still cling tenaciously to Rheims, although the Germans are making savage assaults along the line of Dormans and Rheims.

The Germans have apparently been able to extend their front in the district immediately north of the Marne, but they have not yet reached the Paris-Chalons railway nor have they been able to fight their way into Chateau Thierry, although the French positions in that sector have been violently shelled.

Although the Germans made a big gain in their dash southward from the heights of the Aisne, reaching the Marne, they are still about 15 miles from the line of the farthest advance they made in the fall of 1914, when Von Kluck's hordes were driving against Paris.

The Germans have advanced about 25 miles since they launched their drive on the Oisne front last Monday mroning.

From the preparations the Germans are making along the left flank and judging from the trend the battle has taken some French military critics believe that another direct drive towards Paris may be imminent. If the Germans cannot break through and reach the city they at least hope to get close enough so that they can bombard it with their long range naval guns.

With the battle zone now extended until it touches the Picardy front and the Marne the lines of the German salient now run roughly as follows:

East flank: From the Marne in a northeasterly direction past St. Gemme, Romigny, and Rheims to Brimont.

The Germans are still making terrific efforts along the entire battle line. However, they are now face to face with a great reserve army which General Foch massed to protect the Paris-Chalons railway.

This was the seventy-third day of the German grand offensive, but for about five weeks a comparative lull has existed on the Picardy and Flanders fields.

COTTON NEXT TO BE CONTROLLED

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 1.—An order virtually commandeering the entire cotton output of the country is momentarily expected by men in the cotton industry, it was learned today. Members of the war industries board refused to deny that such a step was contemplated as the only means of meeting the extensive cotton needs of this government and the Allies had produced a situation that was acute and which could be relieved only by a drastic move.

The formal announcement that John Scott of Chicago has been appointed textile administrator of cotton fabrics was expected this afternoon, and with this the first step toward a commandeering order will have been taken, it was believed. It was said to be probable that the same procedure that attended the taking over of the wool supply would be followed and that after the commandeering, when the government needs have been determined, the less essential industries will then be taken care of.

SIX CENT FARE TO BE DISCUSSED

The regular monthly meeting of the city fathers Tuesday evening promises to be an interesting one. Among other matters to come up is said to be the question of a six cent trolley fare in Kingston. It is understood that the trolley road will have a representative present to discuss the matter and try to have the city fathers go on record as approving the step.

The question of redistricting the wards of the city to care for the general election in November will also come up at the meeting. With the women voting it will be impossible to handle the vote in the wards as districted at present and many of the wards will have to have two polling places instead of one.

There may also be another echo of the theater ordinance question at the meeting.

NO NEWS OF LOST TRANSPORT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 1.—Up to noon today no additional word had been received from Vice-Admiral Sims regarding the loss of the transport President Lincoln. At the navy department it was stated that as soon as definite word reached here it would be made public. It was said, however, that it was unlikely that any further information would be forthcoming until the survivors reached land which might not be until late today or tomorrow. No wireless is used in the submarine zone. In the absence of any definite word officials were hopeful that there would be few if any casualties.

FATAL OUTCOME OF A DREAM

A D. & H. R. R. Trainman Dreams of Wreck, Jumps From Window and Breaks His Back.

William O'Neil, aged 37 years, a D. & H. R. R. trainman, residing with his sister at Oneonta, last Wednesday morning about 3:15 o'clock, doubtless while suffering from the effects of a dream that a wreck was impending, raised the window of his sleeping room on the second floor of his home, and jumped to the ground, sustaining permanent injuries, his back being broken. The attending physician gives no hopes whatever for his recovery, although he may linger months and perhaps years.

Mr. O'Neil was in good health and spirits the night previous, visiting with his sister before retiring. In conversation after the accident he admitted an indistant recollection of alarm lest he be caught under the cars but did not remember what he did to avoid the danger. He has on more than one previous occasion leaped out of bed with a cry at fears created by dreams and there is little doubt that this explains his conduct.

The case has many distressing features. He has a family of five children, the oldest being 13 years of age and the youngest six. His wife died a year ago.

MEN IN CHARGE OF FREIGHT RATES

The director general of railroads announces the appointment by the regional directors of the following traffic committees, which will deal in the respective territories with all questions of freight rates arising under General Order No. 28:

Freight Traffic Committee, Eastern Territory, B. Campbell, Chairman, 143 Liberty St., New York.

The director general invites the cooperation of the shipping public in working out a satisfactory adjustment of freight rates on the higher levels now necessary.

All shippers who desire to make suggestions as to the maintenance of established differentials on the readjustment of freight rates under General Order No. 28 may present their views through the freight traffic officers of the railroads serving them, but if shippers feel that after presenting such matters to their home roads that they want their views given further consideration, the freight committee for their territory or district involved will be glad to hear and consider any proposal or suggestion the shippers have to offer.

Aviators
Airplane Mechanics
ATTENTION!

The Government and the airplane manufacturers are calling for airplane mechanics and aviators—hundreds of thousands in a rush but they have no time to teach beginners. We will! Our school trains you in five to ten weeks. Classes mornings, afternoons or evenings. Ninety hours of practical and theoretical work. Complete equipment. Head of school is a practical flyer and mechanic.

We do not teach flying, but every aviator needs this course to safeguard his own life and to make him most efficient.

Our school approved by the Aero Club of America and by leading authorities. The Government and manufacturers continually call for our graduates. Investigate. Fill out and mail this coupon. Get in where there is the greatest need and opportunity.

HURLEY.

Hurley, May 31.—School meeting, June 4, at 7:30 p. m., in the school house.

The newly designed flag floating from the post office is the so called "Honor Flag," granted for the very handsome amount subscribed in this village for the third Liberty Loan.

The Red Cross subscription was also a handsome one and one to be proud of and grateful for.

Mrs. Wilbur of Danbury, Conn., is visiting at the Elmendorf homestead. Mr. Wilbur, her son, came with her a week or so ago.

There was a spelling match held in Kingston on Tuesday for the supervisory district. The successful candidates are to compete with those from other districts at the Ellenville fair. The successful one here goes to the state fair at Syracuse, at the state's expence. Miss Edna Arnst and Miss Jennie Thielpape represented the school at this preliminary contest and were among those selected to compete at Ellenville.

Mrs. Schmidt, who has been visiting her son, James, in Schenectady, has returned home.

Richard Ten Eyck, who has lately undergone a severe operation, has been visiting the Hotaling and Ten-Eyck homesteads. He returned to Albany a few days ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Johnston and baby came down to the Johnston home on Decoration Day.

Miss Ethel Elmendorf came home for the week end.

The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Durfee with Miss Henrietta Myer and Miss Bessie Cole as delegates attended the Christian Endeavor convention at Saugerties the early part of the week. In addition there were Mrs. Lockwood, Mrs. Ostrander, Mrs. Brink, Mrs. Annie Myer, Miss Luella Snyder, Miss Sarah Elmendorf, Miss Julia Lockwood and Miss Eva Hiller, all of whom were present at the convention, making the Hurley representation a strong one.

Mr. and Mrs. James McPherson of Albany came down for the week end at the McPherson homestead.

Mrs. Ironmonger and Mrs. Sism have been visiting at the Charles Dumond household.

Mrs. Fred Foertner and her two children are visiting at the Foertner home.

Charles Lockwood came home for Decoration Day.

The Chappell family have come up for the summer.

The Memorial Day service in the village church on Sunday was a most interesting and enjoyable service. The weather aided in bringing out a goodly audience. The pastor preached an eloquent sermon, relating to the observance of the day, while the members of the choir rendered an exceptionally fine musical program.

The registration notices placed on view must not be confused with the enrolment of women for the primary elections. This registration is for those men who have reached the age of 21 years since June 5, 1917.

ARMENIANS SET EXAMPLE IN ZEAL

Tomasion Brothers, One in Service and the Other Ready When Called, Feel That the War is a Holy Crusade.

SHMAVON D. TOMASION.

With his heart actually in the service, this young American born soldier, Shmavon Tomasion, now daily writes glowing accounts of his life in Camp Dix. Can one conceive it to be an actual fact—a letter written every day? It may be two in the same mail on Monday. He has been at Camp Dix since early in April. But this young recruit must not skip Sunday. And so his brother, Mampra Tomasion, expects that daily letter and so far has not been disappointed.

This soldier's zeal to fight for his adopted country is expressed frequently. Not for effect as one might talk thinking to get into print. He bares his heart in his letters to his brother—

BEFORE HE DONNED THE O. D.

S. D. Tomasion doesn't look like a soldier in this picture, enlarged from a photograph of a group of a happy, care-free holiday crowd, taken before he entered the army.

"I want to help, to do a big fight," Mampra quotes his brother as saying, speaking in his broken English—"and not to fight one and another day." Meaning he longs to get into it and hopes that one long fight will go on until America's enemies are licked.

"You take this business. If I don't come back it is yours," said the departing recruit the last thing on leaving his brother. The shirt manufactory. And Mampra with the difficulties of getting help to be met keeps it going.

But Mampra stands ready to give it up, or sell it. For he too would fight. "In August I will be 21," he said. "Then I will go."

These two so far as they know are all that are left of that American family—farmers, as they were in Erzuroum, Armenia. With no recollection of his parents, Mampra left an uncle, a sister and "a friend" as he called her—three he dearly loved. Maybe they are massacred. Neither he nor his brother have heard from them.

He opens the "Hairenik," an Armenian paper he gets from Boston. Pointing to a miserably printed cut, he says: "It may be my uncle! The Turks they hang the Armenians! Just so," indicating figures swinging from the gibbet. He points to one: "This may be my uncle."

Both boys have their first papers, taken out together eight months ago. Both were born in Erzuroum. The older at Camp Dix was born in 1894 and came to this country in May, 1910. Mampra is four years younger. He came over four years later. "I got here the day the war began," he says, "in 1914."

Both look on this war as a sacred fight. With the zeal of crusaders, they believe they are also to avenge the massacres in Armenia. They regard this country as at war with Turkey, which officially it is not.

"We very glad we in the United States. The United States give us guns. We going to fight. They have hang one million Armenians. We be over there they hang us to, maybe. Now we are young. We can fight. We are very glad to fight for Christianity and civilization." That's exactly how he expressed his feelings.

"This woman," pointing to a miserably clad emaciated woman pictured in the "Hairenik" holding a babe cuddled to her breast; "this mother the Turks strip of everything. She know they going to hang her. She throw her babe in the river. Maybe it might be my mother. The Turks they say 'You believe in Christ?' Well, we hang you as you say your Christ hang.'"

And these two brothers—one in the service, the other ready to go when Uncle Sam calls for him—have a cousin who is also in the service. Harry Tomasion, a Vermont recruit. Three Armenians, all that's left hoping to avenge the massacre go into what they in the plain, simple way call a sacred crusade.

ESOPUS.

Esopus, May 31.—The correspondent wishes to make a corrrection. The superintendent elected for the M. E. Sunday school last Sunday morning is the Rev. J. J. Lyons instead of J. P. Ganoung, as given in the last items.

Miss Marian Mott went to New York city last Sunday evening for a short stay.

Mrs. Daniel Linden, who has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Peter Scheid, returned to Brooklyn on Sunday evening.

The cloudy weather did not prevent a good attendance at the Ladies' Aid meeting held at the home of Mrs. J. P. Ganoung on Wednesday afternoon. Officers for the year were elected as follows: President, Mrs. M. Roberts, first vice president, Mrs. S. E. Mott; second vice president, Mrs. Alex. Smith; third vice president, Mrs. Emma Dickerson; secretary, Mrs. John H. Beaver; assistant secretary, Mrs. Fred Martin; treasurer, Mrs. C. C. Beaver. After the election of officers arrangements were made for a strawberry and ice cream festival to be held on the church lawn in the near future, and date will be given later. At the close of the business hour the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Jacob Best, served refreshments, one of the dishes being ripe strawberries from Mrs. Ganoung's garden. We imagine that these are the first to ripen in this place and the flavor was delicious.

Mrs. Alex. Smith, with her daughter, Amy, her sister, Mrs. Frank Cole, Herbert Cole and Rev. J. J. Lyons made an early trip to Kingston in Mr. Smith's car on Monday morning to say "goodbye" and "good luck" to John Anderson, who was one of the number to leave for Camp Wadsworth, S. C. Mr. Anderson was surprised and delighted to be thus remembered by these friends.

Colin McKenzie has sold his summer home just north of this village to an architect of New York city, who will take possession in a few days. Mr. and Mrs. McKenzie have not fully decided where they will make their home during the summer months, but will, as usual, spend their winters in the south.

John Beaver, Jr., with his father, mother and grandmother, Mrs. John O. Beaver of West Esopus, also Mr. and Mrs. William Johns motored to Port Ewen on Sunday. We are glad to know that Mrs. J. O. Beaver has fully recovered from her long illness and can once more enjoy an auto ride.

Mrs. Edward Ashton was able to take a short auto drive, which she has been looking forward to for many days, to Ascension Cemetery Thursday morning. Her husband, the late Rev. Edward Ashton, and a daughter, are buried there and each Memorial Day the graves are covered with cut flowers by loving hands.

Progression.

How can you ever hope to conduct a business of your own if you never see what has to be done elsewhere? To see things and know at once what to do in the case shows you to be above the average. It won't be long until you will be recognized as such. The fact that you advance gives you self-confidence. That leads to the next step up. Progress is one series of seeing and doing the right thing at the right time. Some folks tell us that's wisdom. Call it what you will, it's profitable.—Exchange.

It's Nothing to Brag About.

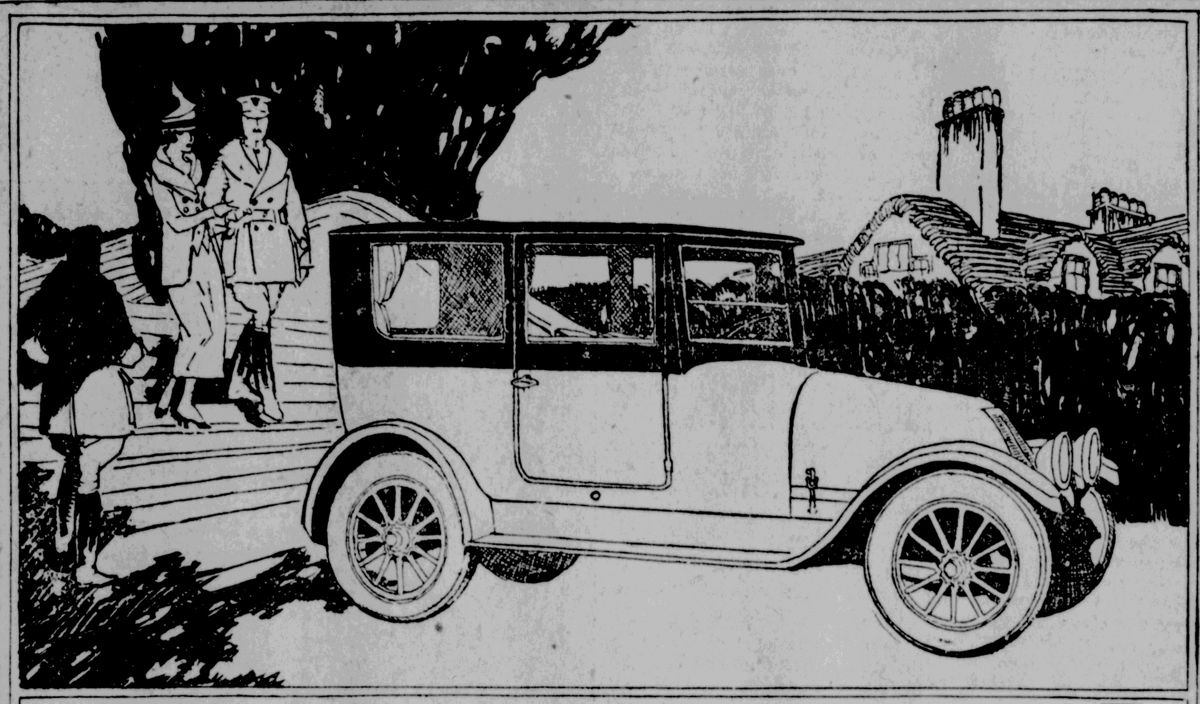

If you are wiser and keener than other folks, you should be thankful, not proud. You didn't make yourself.

Card of Thanks.

Mrs. Richard Hotaling and family wish to thank their neighbors and friends for the kindness shown during the illness and death of their mother and grandmother, Mrs. Catherine Terpening, also for the beautiful flowers sent and to the choir of the Port Ewen Methodist Church and the pastor, for their attention and service rendered.

THE FRANKLIN SEDAN

Combines Enclosed Car Comfort With Open Car Economy

EXPERIENCED motorists all over the country have instantly accepted the Franklin Wide Window Sedan as the Ideal Enclosed Car for year-round use.

The reason is simple. In this car, Enclosed Car Comfort is combined with Open Car Economy.

It couldn't have happened in any other automobile. First, because the Franklin Company pioneered the Sedan type in this country—and brought it to its present perfection. Second, because in no other automobile could Franklin Economy exist.

Franklin Direct Air Cooling, Scientific Light Weight and Flexibility—these are the Big Reasons behind Franklin Economy Facts—as distinguished from the usual economy claims.

The Franklin Sedan consistently delivers:

18-20 Miles to the gallon of gasoline—instead of 8.
10,000 Miles to the set of tires—instead of 5,000.

Add to this, Beauty of Appearance. Add the Wide Window feature which, by removing one window-post, gives a remarkable range of vision; the quiet good taste of its up-to-date interior decoration; the convenience of its seating arrangement—a patented Franklin feature.

Add, too, the easy rolling Franklin quality that enables this Sedan to run lightly, flexibly, resiliently over roads which would mean discomfort, pounding and grinding wear in the usual heavy and rigid enclosed car.

Then you will have some idea of Enclosed Car Perfection; and, if interested in Economy, too, you will want to see and try the car.

ARMENIANS SET EXAMPLE IN ZEAL

Tomasion Brothers, One in Service and the Other Ready When Called, Feel That the War is a Holy Crusade.

SHMAVON D. TOMASION

With his heart actually in the service this young American born soldier, Shmavon Tomasion, now daily writes glowing accounts of his life in Camp Dix Can one conceive it to be an actual fact—a letter written every day? It may be two in the same mail on Monday He has been at Camp Dix since early in April But this young recruit must not skip Sunday And so his brother, Mampra Tomasion, expects that daily letter and so far has not been disappointed

This soldier's zeal to fight for his adopted country is expressed frequently Not for effect as one might talk thinking to get into print. He bares his heart in his letters to his brother—

I want to help, to do a big fight" Mampra quotes his brother as saying speaking in his broken English—'and not to fight one and another day' Meaning he longs to get into it and hopes that one long fight will go on until Americas enemies are licked

'You take this business If I don t come back it is yours,' said the departing recruit the last thing on leaving his brother The shirt manufactory And Mampra with the difficulties of getting help to be met keeps it going

But Mampra stands ready to give it up, or sell it For he too would fight In August I will be 21,' he said Then I will go

These two so far as they know are all that are left of that American family—farmers as they were in Erzuroum, Armenia With no recollection of his parents Mampra left an uncle a sister and "a friend' as he called her—three he dearly loved Maybe they are massacred Neither he nor nor his brother have heard from them

He opens the 'Hairenik" an Armenian paper he gets from Boston Pointing to a miserably painted c.' he says It may be my uncle' The Turks they hang the Armenians just so indicating figures swinging from the gibbet He points to one 'This may be my uncle'

Both boys have their first papers taken out together eight months ago Both were born in Erzuroum The older at Camp Dix was born in 1894 and came to this country in May, 1910 Mampra is four years younger He came over four years later I got here the day the war began" he says, 'in 1914"

Both look on this war as a sacred fight With the zeal of crusaders they believe they are also to avenge the massacres in Armenia They regard this country as at war with Turkey which officially it is not

'We very glad we in the United States The United States give us guns We going to fight They have hang one million Armenians We be over there they hang us to maybe Now we are young We can fight We are very glad to fight for Christianity and civilization' That's exactly how he expressed his feelings

'This woman' pointing to a miserably clad emaciated woman pictured in the 'Hairenik" holding a babe cuddled to her breast, "this mother the Turks strip of everything She know they going to hang her She throw her babe in the river Maybe it might be my mother The Turks they say 'You believe in Christ?' Well, we hang you as you say your Christ hang'"

And these two brothers—one in the service, the other ready to go when Uncle Sam calls for him—have a cousin who is also in the service. Harry Tomasion a Vermont recruit Three Armenians all that's left hoping to avenge the massacre go into what they in the plain, simple way call a sacred crusade

BEFORE HE DONNED THE O D

S D Tomasion doesn't look like a soldier in this picture enlarged from a photograph of a group of a happy, care-free holiday crowd, taken before he entered the army

ESOPUS.

Esopus, May 31 —The correspondent wishes to make a correction The superintendent elected for the M E Sunday school last Sunday morning is the Rev J J Lyons instead of J P Ganoung as given in the last items

Miss Marian Mott went to New York city last Sunday evening for a short stay

Mrs Daniel Linden, who has been visiting her mother, Mrs Peter Scheid, returned to Brooklyn on Sunday evening.

The cloudy weather did not prevent a good attendance at the Ladies' Aid meeting held at the home of Mrs J P Ganoung on Wednesday afternoon Officers for the year were elected as follows: President, Mrs M Roberts, first vice president, Mrs S E Mott; second vice president, Mrs Alex. Smith, third vice president, Mrs Emma Dickerson; secretary, Mrs John H Beaver, assistant secretary, Mrs Fred Martin, treasurer Mrs C C Beaver After the election of officers arrangements were made for a strawberry and ice cream festival to be held on the church lawn in the near future, and date will be given later At the close of the business hour the hostess, assisted by Mrs Jacob Best, served refreshments, one of the dishes being ripe strawberries from Mrs. Ganoung's garden We imagine that these are the first to ripen in this place and the flavor was delicious

Mrs Alex Smith, with her daughter, Amy, her sister, Mrs. Frank Cole, Herbert Cole and Rev J J Lyons made an early trip to Kingston in Mr Smith's car on Monday morning to say 'goodbye" and "good luck" to John Anderson, who was one of the number to leave for Camp Wadsworth, S. C. Mr. Anderson was surprised and delighted to be thus remembered by these friends

Colin McKenzie has sold his summer home just north of this village to an architect of New York city, who will take possession in a few days Mr and Mrs. McKenzie have not fully decided where they will make their home during the summer months, but will, as usual, spend their winters in the south

John Beaver, Jr., with his father, mother and grandmother Mrs John O Beaver of West Esopus, also Mr. and Mrs William Johns motored to Port Ewen on Sunday We are glad to know that Mrs J O. Beaver has fully recovered from her long illness and can once more enjoy an auto ride.

Mrs. Edward Ashton was able to take a short auto drive, which she has been looking forward to for many days, to Ascension Cemetery Thursday morning. Her husband, the late Rev Edward Ashton, and a daughter, are buried there and each Memorial Day the graves are covered with cut flowers by loving hands.

THE OUTLAY AND THE NEED.

Though the individual may sigh over the money he must spend to secure ordinary comforts in these times and look back regretfully to days of relative cheapness and easy abundance, the Government can look back and make even more startling comparisons between its necessary outlays now and in former times. Toward the end of the war of 1861-5 the Treasury at Washington was spending money at the rate of about a billion dollars a year or $2,750,000 a day. Such expenditure was then regarded as stupendous and was indeed without precedent in the country's history, but it was a mere bagatelle compared with what is and must be spent now on a far greater undertaking. We read of a present actual expenditure by our Government of no less than sixty-five millions a day and of future necessary expenditures at the rate of thirty-four billions a year or more than ninety-three millons a day! It takes the breath away and one is inclined to ask why must such things be? The answer is pointedly and briefly made in the following passage from the President's recent address to Congress:

We are not only in the midst of the war, we are at the very peak and crisis of it. Hundreds of thousands of our men, carrying our hearts with them and our fortunes, are in the field, and ships are crowding faster and faster to the ports of France and England with regiment after regiment, thousands after thousands, to join them until the enemy shall be beaten and brought to a reckoning with mankind. There can be no pause or intermission. The great enterprise must, on the contrary, be pushed with greater and greater energy. The volume of our might must steadily and rapidly be augmented until there can be no question of resisting it. If that is to be accomplished, gentlemen, money must sustain it to utmost.

GERMAN MAN POWER.

The release of the greater part of the German army on the Russian front is of itself an insufficient explanation of Germany's apparently inexhaustible resources in man power. That these resources are enormous appears to be more evident now than even during the earlier days of the great and determined drive beginning on March 21. The total losses of Germany since the beginning of the struggle in August, 1914, have been estimated by the Germans themselves at nearly four and a half millions. Such figures have led some observers on our side of the line to believe that the German army is being destroyed at an unparalleled rate and that its speedy exhaustion is inevitable. If so, what is the explanation of Germany's continued offensives on a vast scale and her seeming recklessness in the sacrifice of men?

Several contributing explanations have been offered. One is that no less than 700,000 new conscripts are rounded up every year from the ranks of German youth nearing military age. Another is that a great part of the four and a half million losses have been recovered through the patching up of the wounded and the checking of disease by marvelously ordered and highly scientific methods. In former times the deaths from sickness among soldiers far outnumbered the dead in battle but this is not true of modern armies. One would naturally expect this continuing restoration by Germany to be offset by similar recovery on the part of the allies; but, if the German figures in this connection are reliable, the sick rate in the Teuton armies during the past year has been only one-tenth of one per cent, which means, as comparisons of figures will show, that where the Germans lose one man from sickness the Allies lose at least three and perhaps even four. It is impossible to believe that the German science of surgery, medicine, sanitation and nursing is so immensely superior, but such is the claim put forward. A third contributing explanation is the alleged fact that Germany is already drafting the subject races now in her power. Indeed, it is asserted that Germany has long planned to maintain her reserves both by saving the sick and by employing the man power of conquered countries.

That the Germans would do the latter as soon as possible has long been feared if not confidently expected, and this is one reason why the collapse of Russia was regarded as such a heavy blow to the cause of the Allies. That they are already conscripting subject races seems to be indicated by figures published in the April number of a German publication, Das Neues Europa, those for the first time including losses of Polish, Russian, Lithuanian and Finnish soldiers as well as of native Teutonic troops. Whether or not Germany is as yet doing on any considerable scale what she will undoubtedly do in so far as she is able both now and in the future, there seems to be much to support the view of the French writer, Andre Cheradame, that the German army has grown larger instead of smaller during a long period.

GERMAN CHURCH UNFURLS FLAG

Service Flag With 28 Stars Unfurled at Memorial Day Service in the Spring Street German Lutheran Church.

Union Memorial Day services in the Spring Street German Lutheran Church Thursday evening were attended by a large congregation. There was special music, the services opening with the singing of Luther's battle hymn, "A Mighty Fortress is Our God." Prayer was offered for our country, those in authority and our boys in the service and the exercises throughout were very impressive. A service flag, 8 by 12 feet, was raised in the church, where it will be displayed in future on one side of the altar with the Stars and Stripes on the other side. No special collection was taken but the usual collection amounting to $16.10 will be given to the Red Cross. The congregation of the Church of the Redeemer united in the service with that of the Spring Street Church. The principal address by Pastor Schmidtkonz was as follows:

We meet this evening to celebrate Decoration Day. It gives me pleasure to welcome the members of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer who unite with us in this solemn celebration. It is proper that those who belong together go together and worship together at such an occasion as this, that brotherly love and confidence may prevail and be maintained among us.

Decoration Day is the finest and most solemn day of all our national days. It is not a day for fun and pleasure. It is a memorial day, and as such should be patriotically and religiously observed. This day is set apart to the memory of that great army of men who fought and gave their lives for their country. Our country can never pay the debt it owes to these men. They have left us a priceless heritage. Let us see that we are worthy of it.

We decorate with flowers and blossoms of May the graves where our heroes sleep in long rest, because they first decorated our nation's annals with the beauty of their devotion.

Sailor brave and soldier true
We will find a wreath for you
Where you lie so still and low
In the land you guarded so.

Like everything else, holidays undergo a gradual change in spirit and observance. In recent years the Memorial Day idea has taken larger proportions. North and south, the blue and the gray unite in the same celebration. And why not? In the land of Washington and Lincoln one flag, one people is our motto and watch word. The real aim of such a celebration as this is to do honor to those who have founded and preserved our union, to keep alive our national principles and to foster true patriotism.

Our country will never cease to honor the men who saved the nation. There are few now, and every year their ranks grow smaller. We respect them while they are with us. The graves of their dead comrades we strew with flowers and year by year as these mounds increase in number we strew more flowers. But not only do we place flowers on those hallowed spots which are marked by flags, but we leave a wreath upon the graves of our own dear ones who have gone before, and this is well.

We celebrate Decoration Day in the midst of a new conflict. It is fitting, therefore, that a new seriousness mark our observance of this day of commemoration. We ought to celebrate this day in the spirit of earnest consecration and wait upon God in humiliation and prayer, beseeching him that he may forgive our sins and short-comings as individuals and as a people and praying for our nation in this fiery trial of war.

Let us not be confident of our own strength and not trust in our own sufficiency and might, because as Luther says in his Battle Hymn: "With might of ours can naught be done, soon were our loss effected." Let us humbly and devoutly acknowledge our dependence on Almighty God and implore His aid, protection and guidance. He is "our refuge and strength, a very present help in time of trouble." "A mighty fortress is our God, a trusty shield and weapon; He helps us free from every every need, that hath now o'ertaken."

Today we shall honor not only the heroes of the past but also those who at this hour are fighting even greater battles in our behalf. The Lutheran Church of America has given generously of her sons to this country in times of conflicts. I cannot now sufficiently honor the brave soldiers of Lutheran extraction who fought for independence, who fought in support of our country when rebellion threatened its destruction, and who took part in all other wars in which our country has put the loyalty of its citizens to the test. Our Lutheran Church yields to none in the quality and sincerity of her patriotism. The facts of history show and prove her loyalty.

There are today between 190,000 and 200,000 Lutheran men with the United States army and navy. They have gone out from our congregations. Prayers are going up for them from many homes and many churches that God would be with them, hoping that they may return safely.

The three Lutheran Churches in our city have 77 men in the service of our countyy. The Livingston Street Lutheran Church, 23; the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, 26; and our dear old Spring Street German Lutheran Church 28. This is indeed a fine showing. Our Lutheran Churches may be smaller than some other parishes in the city, but our loyalty and love of country is not smaller. We are willing to help our country in every way, and our young men are ready to serve their country to the best of their ability during this war.

We are proud of our boys. They belong to us by reason of the tender ties of home and church They have grown up in our midst and have been reared and educated in our homes and churches; they have attended our divine services and stood at the communion altar with father and mother, sister and brother and neighbor; they were known as honest, reliable, faithful, industrious boys; and they have now gone forth in obedience to the call of duty. They looked fine and strong and brave and manly as they marched away under the benediction of the parting tears.

The 28 young men of our church now in military service are: John E. Weber, Hermann Woelfersheim, William Marks, Fred Schwenk, William Henninger, Fred Menge, Henry Thiel, Carl Baer, Edward Weber, Arthur Gill, John Mayer, Carl Kohler, Albert E. Marks, Albert Hasselmann, Edward H. Plattner, John G. Schmidt, William J. Woerner, Christian Melbert, Harry E. Wieber, William Nagele, Paul Thiel, John A. Reinhard, John C. Otto, Albert Salzmann, Henry Muench, Carl Roenn, Henry O. Roenn, William Werner.

These are our boys. We love our boys. We pray for them. We think of them. We wish them well. God be with them in the trenches, on the battle-field, yea, even in the hour, if that hour must come, "When the shadows fall and the dews of death are on their brows."

I now accept this beautiful banner with high appreciation to our Ladies' Aid Society, which presented it. I dedicate this service flag, blossomed with 28 stars in honor of our 28 sons, whose heroism this flag commemorates.

May God—our God, protect
And save our boys.

Ashore for a Day.

For three weeks it had rained continually, so in a certain camp on the Mexican border they had dug a deep ditch around their camp to drain off the water. One night the rain stopped its downpour, much to the relief of the soldiers, so the next day a soldier asked for leave to visit a nearby town. This is the way he asked for his leave: "Captain, may I have shore leave today, sir?" It was granted him.

GOOD EATING.

Anybody who is fortunate enough to have a ham to boil should use every caution to have it well cooked and well seasoned, for ham is ham these days.

Soak the ham overnight and in the morning put to cook covered with sweet cider. Into the kettle with the ham add some leaves and root of celery, an onion stock with half a dozen cloves, a dozen peppercorns, a couple of bay leaves, and lacking cider, a cupful of vinegar and three tablespoonfuls of brown sugar added to cold water. When the liquid comes to a slow boil, let the kettle be set back where it will just simmer until it is done. The time allowed for cooking will depend upon the size of the ham. If it is overcooked and falls to pieces when cut it is ruined. Cool the ham in the liquor in which it was cooked. Skin the ham, spread with brown sugar, dot with cloves and bake in the oven until brown. Serve hot or cold cut in wafer-like slices. A dish fit for an epicure.

Rice and Sultana Croquettes.—Pick the stems from a cupful of sultana raisins; wash a cupful of rice and add three cupfuls of milk; cook until the rice is tender, adding a half teaspoonful of salt. When tender, add the yolks of two eggs, one-fourth of a cupful each of sugar and butter and a little spice; mix well and set aside to become cool. Form in balls, dip in egg, roll in crumbs and fry one minute in deep fat. Serve with

Orange Sabayon Sauce.—Beat one whole egg with two yolks until thoroughly mixed; add half a cupful of sugar and beat again. Add half a cupful of orange juice and the juice of half a lemon. Set over boiling water and cook until it thickens slightly. Turn at once into a cold dish.

Casseroled Calves' Hearts.—Fry an onion in a few slices of bacon; roll four calves' hearts in seasoned flour and brown them all over. Put in a hot casserole, add a cupful of stock, a shredded pimento, and half a teaspoonful of mixed spices. Cover the dish tightly, then bake for two hours. Serve garnished with the bacon.

MEMORIAL DAY IN WOODSTOCK

Memorial Day, in accordance with time-honored custom, Woodstock paid its tribute to the memory of our dead soldiers. This year Memorial Day has new significance and new poignancy. Memories of the Civil War and the Spanish War have dimmed with time, but today's dread is fresh. It brings grim realization to the traditional ceremony. In our thoughts today are not only our own soldiers, but those of England, France and Italy, who are fighting with us, not only those who have died, but those who must die before this war is over.

In the procession were the guns of the Home Guard, Red Cross banners, white robed Red Cross workers and the symbolic figure of the liberty we are struggling to preserve.

The speaker, Dr. James Sullivan, of the University of the State of New York, head of the Division of Archives and History of the Department of Education of New York state, departed widely from the traditional speech to give a forceful denial to two insidious form of pro-German propaganda.

1. This is a commercial war. Only people who are of German birth or tinged with German beliefs and ideals can say or believe this, said Dr. Sullivan. The very fact that England entered the war, so promptly, by so doing, giving up the enormous profits she could have made by remaining neutral and selling munitions to the belligerents, gives the lie to this. He showed the German method of provoking war in order to gain new territory that she has indulged in for three hundred years, the present day understanding of this method of here and the consequent resistance by England and France at the beginning of the war.

2. The Germans are nice, efficient people. Why fight them? Why not let them rule us if they wish? The best answer to this wide-spread German propaganda is this. If German rule is such a beautiful and fine thing, why have so many Germans left Germany to live in America and why do so many German children commit suicide?

J. B. Hoyt, officer of the day, presided at the exercises. Raymond Ford was marshal of the procession. In the procession appeared the Junior Order of United American Mechanics, the Red Cross Chapter and representatives of the Patriotic Service League.

The Memorial Day organization committee secured Dr. Sullivan as a speaker through the publicity committee of the Patriotic Service League.

On Italy-American Day the Patriotic Service League requested its members to comply with the request of the Italy-America Society to observe the day. Many members wore flowers as requested and placed the Italian flag with the American flag upon their automobiles.

Saturday evening, June 8, Dr. Jacob G. Lipman, director of the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station, will address the citizens of Woodstock, upon invitation of the Patriotic Service League. Dr. Lipman is a well-known soil expert. He will probably talk about proper ways of treating the soil, proper use of fertilizers and rotation of crops.

FIGHT ON STREET PROVED EXPENSIVE

Proprietor Allan Mackenzie of Bonnie Doon Hotel and B. C. Van Zandt Staged One in Front of U. S. Hotel—Cost Them $5 Each.

Wednesday afternoon Policeman James V. Simpson placed Allan MacKenzie, proprietor of the Bonnie Doon Hotel at Rosendale, and Bertram C. Van Zandt of Tillson, under arrest on a charge of staging a fight in front of the United States Hotel on Broadway that afternoon.

This morning they were arraigned before Judge Schirick in police court and entered a plead of not guilty.

Officer Simpson was sworn as a witness and told his story briefly. He said he saw Van Zandt standing outside the hotel when Mackenzie came out and struck Van Zandt in the jaw. The officer then hurried across the street and grasped each man by the arm, While holding them by each arm Van Zandt reached about and tried to hit Mackenzie but was unsuccessful as Officer Simpson held them apart. The officer then escorted them to police headquarters. Mackenzie was represented in court by Attorney V. B. Van Wagonen and told his story of how it happened. He said he had come to Kingston to make some purchases. He was in the hotel waiting for the auto stage to return home in it when Van Zandt came in and invited him to have a drink. In fact Van Zandt grasped him by the collar so insistent was he.

"What was Van Zandt's condition tion?" asked Mr. Van Wagonen.

"Oh, he was drunk," replied Mr. Mackenzie and he went on to state that he went into the bar room with Van Zandt and took a cigar while Van Zandt had a whskey. Then Van Zandt refused to pay saying Mackenzie would pay which Mackenzie refused to do. He caimed that Van Zandt then struck him and went out of the hotel with Mackenzie's hat and he followed him out to get his hat and he got it.

Van Zandt said he had come to Kingston to get a job on the boatyard. He secured a job as a laborer on one of the yards and then went uptown again. He confessed he had a few drinks, the first since Christmas, and claimed Mackenzie had a few drinks with him. According to Van Zandt Mackenzie started the fight.

At the close of the testimony Judge Schirick found both men guilty of fighting as charged and fined each $5 which they paid.

Mackenzie is 69 years old and Van Zandt is 33 years.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Mrs. John Fullerton of 369 Washington avenue was given a delightful surprise party on Friday evening by a number of her friends. Games were played, music and dancing were enjoyed, after which refreshments were served. The guests departed for their home declaring they had had a splendid time.

Horth-Sullivan.

Arthur Joseph Horth of Ansonia, Conn., and Miss Anna Frances Sullivan of No. 29 Rogers street were united in marriage with the beautiful nuptial mass of the Catholic Church at 8 o'clock this morning in St. Mary's Church by the Rev. Dean John J. Hickey. The attendants were Miss Isabella Sullivan and John Horth.

Weisberg-Merine.

Announcements have been received in this city of the marriage in New York Friday, May 31, of Samuel Weisberg to Mrs. Ray S. Merine, both residents of this city. The groom is the well-known ladies' tailor of Fair street and the bride, who resided at 65 Pearl street, has for a long time been in his employ in charge of the dressmaking department. The newly married couple will spend a few days in New York before returning to their home in Kingston.

Earl Hummel Recital.

Never has there been a time in the history of our country when it has been as necessary as now to conserve the youthful musical talent of the land as it is today, when our musical artists of draft age are being called to the colors, despite their talents. Some day within this generation we shall come to peace, and then we shall want and need these new youthful musicians for we shall have learned as never before the real significance of good music. So it behooves those of us in Kingston, interested in our country's best future to do all we can in the cherishing and aiding of our own talented young violinist, Earl Hummel. On Friday evening of next week Earl will give his annual violin recital at the First Presbyterian Church, and while he will be ably assisted he will of course be the chief soloist of the evening. He will play the Preludio to Bach's Sixth Sonata for the violin alone, a form of music very rarely ever heard in this city. He will also play the entire concerto No. 22 by Viotti and one of the famous Sarasate Spanish dances. The tickets are fifty cents and Kingstonians should see to it that the church auditorium is filled, for Earl's sake. The full program will appear in a later issue of The Freeman.

SONG FESTIVAL HELD FRIDAY

The patriotic song and musical festival presented at the Orpheum theatre Friday afternoon and evening under the auspices of the New York State Division of Four Minute Men, drew a large audience and seemed to please them all. Thomas J. Comerford, chairman of Kingston's Four Minute Men, presided and addresses were made by him, Secretary Thornberry of the Y. M. C. A., Frank R. Powley, and Mayor Canfield. Sergeant Eaton also gave a patriotic talk. Between the addresses music, both vocal and instrumental, was rendered by the visiting artists.

MEMORIAL DAY IN ROSENDALE

The Decoration Day parade held at Rosendale proved to be a very successful event. One of the pleasing features was a large turn out of the employes of the Mark M. Konski shirt factory, led by Mrs. Lew E. Conklin and Miss Mildred Christiana, who was dressed to represent "Liberty." The rest of the members were all gowned in white, wearing white veils and carrying an American flag. The group were encircled in red, white and blue bunting, creating a very favorable impression along the line of march and receiving great applause. The parade was headed by Washburn Brothers' Band of Glasco, and a detachment of New York state troops stationed at Stone Ridge.

BENEFIT CONCERT.

Miss Delta Boice and Pupils to Aid Red Cross.

All who were so fortunate as to attend the exceedingly artistic performance given by the pupils of Miss Delta Boice at the opera house last summer for the benefit of the Company M comfort kit fund will be more than delighted to know that Miss Boice's pupils with an added attraction, will give another similar exhibition at the opera house this year for the benefit of the Ulster County Chapter of the Red Cross. The date set for this charming entertainment is Friday evening, June 14th., and Miss Boice announces that some forty pupils will participate in the program which will include some twenty numbers. The "added attraction" will be Miss Boice herself who will give three solo dances. There will be two performances a matinee and an evening performace, and the entire proceeds will be for the Red Cross. Muller's orchestra will furnish the music, and Fred Van Etten will be pianist for Miss Boice.

Corpus Christi Polish Church.

The feast of Corpus Christi in honor of the Blessed Sacrament, transferred in America from May 30, will be celebrated with due reverence and devotion at the Church of the Immaculate Cosception, Delaware avenue, on Sunday, June 2, with solemn high mass with exposition at 10:30 a. m. and with procession at 3:30 p. m. There will be three altars outside the church and the procession with the Blessed Sacrament will march to these altars. In the procession will take part all the church societies and all the school children. The procession will end in the church, where at the main altar the Rev. Francis Lesniewski, celebrant, will give benediction with the Blessed Sacrament.

Why Road Oil is Delayed.

The board of public works has received many inquiries relative to road oiling by residents who are wondering when the street in front of their homes is to be oiled for the summer. The board has been notified that all applications for road oil must be made to the state government, who in turn forward the application to Washington where it is acted upon. This accounts undoubtedly for the delay in shipments. As fast as the road oil is received by the city it will be spread on the streets to be oiled.

"Home Day" Banner Makes Stir.

The appearance of a banner in the "Home Day" parade in Poughkeepsie Decoration Day bearing the inscription "We are the boys that were driven away by the Chamber of Commerce but we have come back to our home, sweet home," stirred up Mayor Butts, several of the board of aldermen and the Chamber of Commerce of that city.

Masquerading

By Vincent Perry

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Chester Hall carefully arranged his skirts as he settled in the big comfortable chair among the palms, took a powder puff and mirror from his vanity bag and cooly powdered his nose. After making quite sure that his hair was on straight and his ear-rings were not coming off, he put his neatly slippered feet out, displaying more than a foot of silk hose, and sat back, fanning himself contentedly. Although from all appearances he was the personification of serenity, a fire of resentment burned within him. He was an idiot to have allowed the boys to persuade him to come to the masquerade in that costume, he thought. Masquerading as a female in college theatricals was all right, but it was a different thing at a dance. For the first time in his career he was experiencing what it was to be a wallflower, and it more than galled him.

If only he were not such a good impersonator and had not a reputation as such to keep up! If he hadn't deceived every girl in the place it would not have been so awkward, but things had gone so far that he wouldn't unmask under any circumstances. Believing he was a girl, none of the girls would dance with him, and the boys were in on the joke and wouldn't waste a dance on him. Besides, he didn't care for a dance with a boy; what pleasure would there be in that?

But the most galling part of it all was the presence, or the expected presence, of the girl he had been waiting months to meet. When he thought of that the fanning stopped. If he had known she was going to be there a million dollars would not have tempted him to appear in that costume. He had wanted to make a good impression the first time they met, and if he was introduced to her as he was she would think at once that he was an idiot and would have nothing further to do with him. Her letters would stop, and everything would be over. Even her brother Bob, his chum and roommate, would not be able to fix it up, he was sure. What kind of friend was Bob, anyway, to let him come dressed as a girl, and not tell him Murial was going to be there until they arrived and it was too late to back out? But he couldn't feel bitter toward Bob, for it was through him he had got into correspondence with Murial, and her letters had been the most interesting part of his college life. If he could get away without revealing who he was it would be all right, but he was anxious to have a look at Bob's sister before he left. If she was anything like her picture she was a beauty. Apparently she wasn't on the floor, for the position he had taken gave him a full view of the ballroom, and he was sure he would recognize her the minute his eyes lit upon her.

"Who Are You?"

The music was wonderful and Chester could hardly keep his feet still. Oh, what would he have given to have had that two-step with Murial. If that air kept up he couldn't keep off the floor much longer, he thought. There was no partner about, but if some one didn't come and ask him to dance he would get out and do a solo.

A faint cough beside him caused him to look up. A very slender young man dropped into the seat next to him. As their eyes met Chester dropped his; he had to remember his role. But the one glance had been sufficient to size up the young man. He was a gawk and it was his first time out, Chester could see. The dress suit looked out of place on him, and he felt out of place in it. He was too shy to ask any of the girls to dance—but how he could stay out of it with music like that, Chester couldn't see. Here was his opportunity to have a dance and at the same time help the gawk get over his shyness.

He rose, smiled in the boy's face, and said, as coyly as he could:

"Please be my partner for the next dance."

It wasn't the proper thing for a young lady to do, but Chester was sure the gawk wouldn't know that. He had seen shy boys in his life, but this one was shyer than he had ever imagined a boy could be. Although Chester put out his arm invitingly, the fellow stood in embarrassed bewilderment. The music was as entrancing as ever, and Chester couldn't stay off the floor any longer. Before the young man could stammer refusal he was whirled onto the floor, and he had to dance to save his feet from being trampled. After Chester had stepped on his toes a number of times, the gawk seemed to realize what was expected of him, and before the second time around he was dancing very well.

So far so good, Chester thought. But it was his duty to break this young fellow into the methods to employ with the fair sex. With this in view he started to chatter gaily in the sweetest effeminate tone he could assume, but the boy wouldn't talk, and Chester was exasperated. The music stopped and Chester applauded loudly for an encore. His partner stood like the gawk Chester thought he was, and he felt like kicking him. When they started out on the encore he thought of another course of action. It would be a shame to let such a good dancer become a fixture.

"You chump! Why don't you talk?" he said in his natural voice. "If you expect to get in soft with the girls you'll have to talk a little. Girls hate to dance with a block of wood, even though they can dance as well as you can. You are a splendid dancer, and if you could only talk the girls would take you up in no time."

The look of horror on his partner's face made Chester feel like stopping for a good laugh, but instead he explained: "I am a boy dressed up as a girl, and I'm having the time of my life. Why didn't you wear a fancy costume?"

"You didn't seem to be enjoying it much." The boy spoke for the first time, and apparently he was suffering from a cold.

"I was a little in the dumps when you came, I'll confess," Chester laughingly answered. "I wish I had worn another costume. I'm too good at female impersonating, that is the trouble, and I was shut out of all the dances, because none of the girls are on to it that I am a boy. Besides, the Only Girl is here tonight, and I wanted to make a good impression. I won't be able to meet her now because of this costume."

"Why not?"

"Because she doesn't know I'm such an idiot. You see, I have never met her. I have just written to her, and got letters back. She's my roommate's sister, and the finest little girl on earth."

"I'd like to meet her."

Chester gasped. The gawk was learning fast. Before he could speak again the encore had ended and his partner had led him back to the palms. The boy sat down in the chair, apparently exhausted.

"You silly thing, get up. I'm supposed to be a girl, and—" but Chester finished with an exclamation of surprise. A curl was hanging down from the "boy's" head. The straight black hair was a wig.

"You're a girl!" Chester gasped.

"And you're a boy," the girl laughed. "Who are you?"

But before the girl could answer Bob Merrifield, Chester's chum, came from behind a big palm and introduced them.

"So you are Murial, and heard all I said about you," Chester groaned, after he recovered sufficiently to find voice.

"Yes; but what does it matter?" Murial smiled. "This waltz is going to be a splendid one. I have my curls tucked up, so if you will let me lead you to the floor I'll promise to talk a little."

Interesting Relics of Stone Age.

Fifteen human skeletons were unearthed near Osaka, Japan. This is considered the birthplace of Japanese civilization. Of the relics of the Japanese stone age, discovered by Professor Okushi, nine of the skeletons were in perfect preservation, all bones being intact. It rarely happens, according to scientific records, that so many perfect skeletons are discovered in one place. Among indications that people of that period lived on uncooked food is the fact that upper and lower teeth are evenly worn down. Decayed teeth are not found. Some of these skeletons stand seven feet high. Skeletons were found in a lying position, with knees drawn up. Without doubt, these people belonged to the stone age in Japan—30,000 years ago, at least. While making the excavation, stone implements, earthenware and two copper arrowheads were found. It is thought this find may establish a link between the stone and bronze ages in prehistoric Japan. This discovery revolutionizes archeological theories of prehistoric Japan.—East and West News.

"That depends on what you want to invest in. If I were going to buy a motor car or a private yacht I would consult Dubwaite. If I were planning to invest in something that would pay me dividends I would not only keep it a profound secret from Dubwaite, but I would be afraid to trust one of his most distant relatives."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Our Potato Column

Article No. 5.

LOSE SEVEN BUSHELS OF POTATOES EVERY DAY.

What Happens When the Tops of Potatoes Are Killed Prematurely.

For everyday when the tops of potatoes could grow but do not, the grower loses seven bushels of potatoes per acre.

Whenever the growing season is lessened by even two weeks through attacks of potato beetles and flea beetles, the acre loss is very nearly one hundred bushels—potatoes which the grower might have had had he protected his investment in the growing of potatoes.

For every week that is lost during the growing season, because the tops are killed by early blight, or by tipburn, or by the late blight, which is followed by rot, the loss to the grower is nearly 50 bushels per acre. This is generally more rather than less, for often the entire crop rots. Then the grower loses not only what he might have had, but some of the potatoes which he actually did have.

The figures are taken from results secured at two widely separated agricultural experiment stations. At one of these stations, in Minnesota, they commenced digging the crop the very last of July, and measured the acre yield, by weeks, until the last of August. The last harvest was 215 bushels greater than the first harvest. The crop gained at the rate of slightly over seven bushels per acre per day, an increase which is absolutely lost when the vines die early.

At the Rhode Island experiment station a similar experiment was tried, ith results in very close agreement. The first harvest was July 11, when the yield was at the rate of 162 bushels per acre. The last of the potatoes were dug 32 days later, when the tops were entirely dead, and the yield at that time was found to be 393 bushels per acre—a gain of over seven bushels per acre per day.

Spraying Prevents the Loss.

Spraying the potato vines against bugs, beetles and blights prevents this great loss. It kills the beetles and keeps the blights from even getting started. It makes larger yields by prolonging the growing season.

Fertilizers have much the same affect. A poorly nourished plant can no more resist disease than can a poorly nourished man. Spraying protects the potato growers' investment in fertilizer, and thus gives what is really double protection.

As long as potato vines stay green the yield continues to increase, even if most of the leaves are dead. It is important to know this, for in spraying potatoes the temptation is always to omit the last spraying. The vines are often lodged between the rows, and it seems as though more damage would be done by the sprayer in passing through the rows than would be done by neglecting to spray. Yet if the last spraying simply wards off the blight and keeps the vines healthy until complete maturity, a few days at best, it pays enormous returns on the spraying investment.

HOW BORDEAUX MIXTURE WAS DISCOVERED.

Bordeaux mixture, the standard fungicide spray for potato blights, was discovered back in 1887, by a Frenchman named Millardet.

Professor Millardet had a vineyard at Bordeaux, France. He also had neighbors, and these neighbors had boys. There is but one sequel to conditions such as these and the sorrowful fact must be admitted that the boys raided the vineyard, and that the professor was robbed of the fruits of his labors.

To prevent the robbery, Professor Millardet sprayed his grapes with a mixture of copper sulphate (bluestone or blue vitrol) and lime, the latter material being used to make the copper stick, and the copper sulphate put in to make the unwary boy who ate of the sprayed grapes repent of his sins.

History does not tell us how successful this thief preventing and thief detecting device may have been, but it does relate how the professor noticed that the vines sprayed with this material very soon became thriftier than the others, and were much less injured by fungus diseases. Later on he tried the spray on potatoes, and found it wonderfully effective—so much that in all great potato sections it has become customary to spray with either commercial bordeaux or prepare the same at home, for the prevention of both the early blight and the late blight or rot.

HOW DO YOUR YIELDS COMPARE WITH THESE?

The ten-year average acre yield of potatoes, as reported by the United States department of agriculture, for some of our larger potato-growing states is as follows:

Maine	206 bushels per acre
Minnesota	99 bushels per acre
Wisconsin	97 bushels per acre
New York	94 bushels per acre
Virginia	90 bushels per acre
Michigan	90 bushels per acre
Pennsylvania	83 bushels per acre

Think of the days of toil and labor spent in cultivating low-producing fields! In these days of war and labor shortage might it not be better to reduce acreage and grow more potatoes per acre?

Progression.

How can you ever hope to conduct a business of your own if you never see what has to be done elsewhere? To see things and know at once what to do in the case shows you to be above the average. It won't be long until you will be recognized as such. The fact that you advance gives you self-confidence. That leads to the next step up. Progress is one series of seeing and doing the right thing at the right time. Some folks tell us that's wisdom. Call it what you will, it's profitable.—Exchange.

It's Nothing to Brag About.

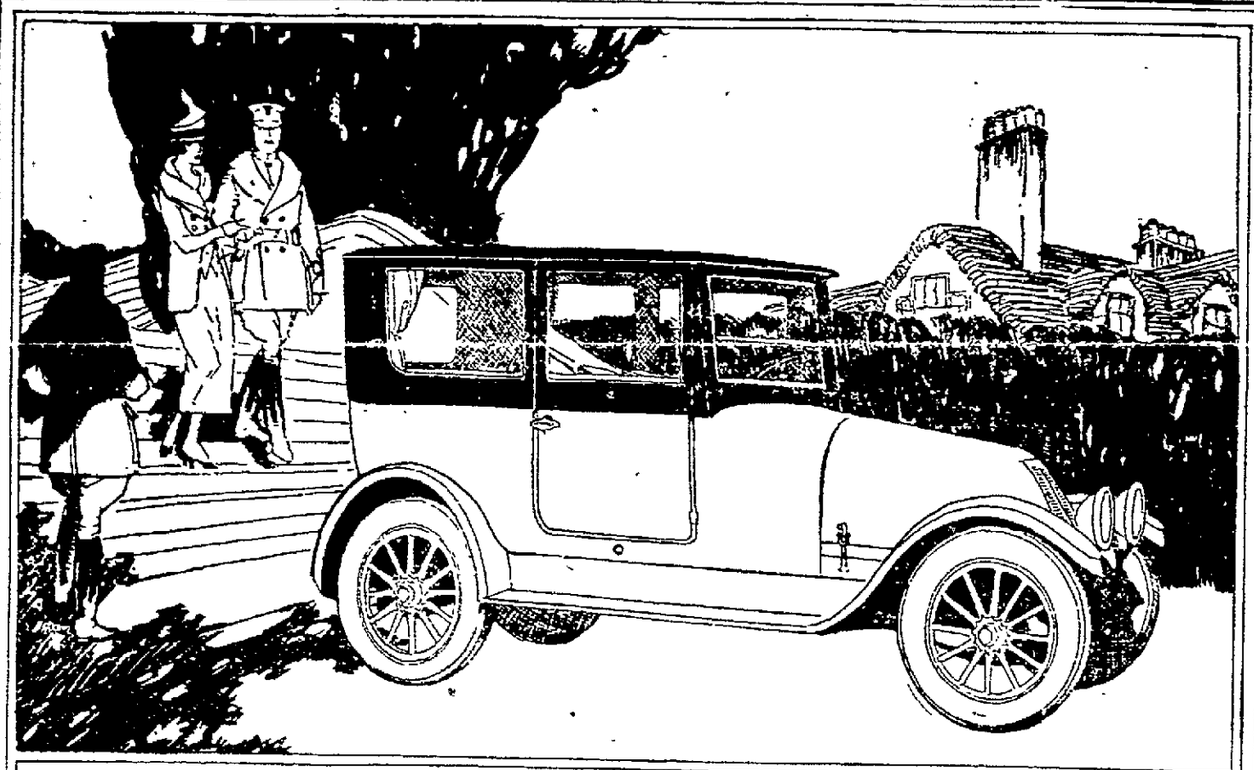

If you are wiser and keener than other folks, you should be thankful, not proud. You didn't make yourself.

Card of Thanks.

Mrs. Richard Hotaling and family wish to thank their neighbors and friends for the kindness shown during the illness and death of their mother and grandmother, Mrs. Catherine Terpening, also for the beautiful flowers sent and to the choir of the Port Ewen Methodist Church and the pastor, for their attention and service rendered.

THE FRANKLIN SEDAN

Combines Enclosed Car Comfort With Open Car Economy

EXPERIENCED motorists all over the country have instantly accepted the Franklin Wide-Window Sedan as the Ideal Enclosed Car for year-round use.

The reason is simple. In this car, Enclosed Car Comfort is combined with Open Car Economy.

It couldn't have happened in any other automobile. First, because the Franklin Company pioneered the Sedan type in this country—and brought it to its present perfection. Second, because in no other automobile could Franklin Economy exist.

Franklin Direct Air Cooling, Scientific Light Weight and Flexibility—these are the Big Reasons behind Franklin Economy Facts—as distinguished from the usual economy claims.

The Franklin Sedan consistently delivers:

18-20 Miles to the gallon of gasoline—instead of 8.
10,000 Miles to the set of tires—instead of 5,000.

Add to this, Beauty of Appearance. Add the Wide Window feature which, by removing one window-post, gives a remarkable range of vision; the quiet good taste of its up-to-date interior decoration; the convenience of its seating arrangement—a patented Franklin feature.

Add, too, the easy rolling Franklin quality that enables this Sedan to run lightly, flexibly, resiliently over roads which would mean discomfort, pounding and grinding wear in the usual heavy and rigid enclosed car.

Then you will have some idea of Enclosed Car Perfection; and, if interested in Economy, too, you will want to see and try the car.

NORTH RONDOUT MIXUP IN COURT

Joseph Baliszewski Found Guilty of Calling Mrs. Rose McCullough Bad Names—It Cost Him $10.

After a lengthy trial in police court this morning Judge Schirick found Joseph Baliszewski guilty of calling Mrs. Rose McCullough of 82 Third avenue bad names and fined him $10 which he paid. There is likely to be civil suits pending also.

From the testimony as developed in cour this morning Baliszewski, who resides in Poughkeepsie, owns the adjoining property to the McCulloughs. The other day, on May 4th to be exact, he came up from Poughkeepsie and drove a stake in the sidewalk between the two properties. Then he took eithr an axe or a blacksmith's sledge, the evidence on that point was conflicting, and knocked down part of the boundary fence.

While he was doing that one of the McCullough girls telephoned to police headquarters and Officers Walker and Sashloff hurried to the scene but things had quieted down by then and no arrests were made.

Later Mrs. McCullough swore out a warrant for Baliszewski's arrest.

This morning she and her daughter testified Baliszewski had called her vile names and knocked down the fence.

On the other hand he claimed that he had seen Judge O'Reilly and was advised to knock the fence down as it was on his property and that was the reason he had done so. He denied calling Mrs. McCullough unprintable names and his evidence was corroborated by his wife and a neighbor's girl who resided three houses away and who was in her yard while the rumpus was underway.

It also developed that there had been trouble over the boundary line before.

Newton H. Fessenden represented Mrs. McCullough and John M. Cashin appeared for Mr. Baliszewski.

Optimistic Thought.

TAUNTING JOLTS FOR KIND FOLKS

Picking Up Passengers Does Not Always Work Out as It Should.

EXPERIENCES OF MOTORISTS

Trials and Tribulations of Men Who Sought to Aid Those Not Fortunate Enough to Have Cars to Ride to Town in.

There are reasons why motorists do not pay more attention to the casual pedestrian whom they might pick up from the safety zone along the street car track and carry with them to the city center. Advices to motorists to travel with all seats filled as a means to assisting in transporting the people at all hours, and particularly at busy hours, has been heeded again and again by motorists who have all too often regretted their kindly feeling later, says Detroit Free Press. In a gathering of motorists at a club recently some incidents were related of the trials and tribulations of men who had decided to take the advice and aid those not so fortunate in having cars in which to ride at the time.

What's the Graft?

One motorist related an incident which made him hesitate about stopping to pick up a pedestrian. He said that he came to a full stop at a safety zone and asked a man standing there if he would like to ride downtown. The man turned round with a sneer and said, "What's your graft, anyway?" That man was left where he stood, with no car in sight and with his ears burning from the rousting he received within the few seconds it took for the motorist in question to get his car under way again.

Another motorist told of picking up a respectable business man who seemed in a hurry as he ran down a side street to the main car line. The business man climbed in gladly, but the moment he took his seat beside the driver settled back into that seat and placed his boots squarely on the dash of the car, where he left long scratches which remained until removed by that car owner. That driver said that he had stopped for no pickups except soldiers and women and children since that time.

Car Was No Good.

Another motorist had a car in which he took much pride and which was running particularly well at the time he picked up a man. That passenger by invitation immediately started to belittle the car of the man with whom he was riding, and said that that particular make had never been any good and that the company would never be able to make a good car if in business a hundred years. The driver was one of the partners in the company manufacturing the car he drove, so held his temper, but lost no more confidence in his product by picking up critical business men without cars of their own, but with decided opinions on the subject with which they had no experience.

So it went on, and man after man of the party showed plainly by his own experience that the dear people who do not own a motorcar care little for the opinion which the real motorcar owner may have of them after their boorish acceptance of a kindness well meant but oftentimes not repeated.

DANGER IN CRANKING AUTOS

This Is Especially So When Engine Is Not Working Properly—Little Tip Is Given.

There is always danger in cranking a machine by hand, the more especially if the engine is not working properly, as it may kick even though the spark be retarded. Sometimes it is hard work to start an engine with retarded spark—so here is a little tip: Open the throttle, but leave the spark off; turn the engine over two or three times, then turn on the spark and pull the crank upward, not downward, and you will not be in danger of breaking your arm.—Club News, Keystone Auto Club.

CARE OF ANTISKID DEVICES

Great Harm Will Result From Their Continual Use—Leaving Them On Is Expensive.

Antiskid devices are helpful under certain conditions, but great harm will result from their continued use. Because some devices are noisy there is a temptation to fasten them tightly to the tires. When this is done the extra pressure and the flattening out of the tires causes the cross grips to cut and gouge into the tire. When cross grips become worn, sharp and rough, they should be replaced. Otherwise the tread will be cut and moisture and dirt will do the rest.

Take off the antiskid devices as soon as the necessity for using them has passed. Leaving them on when they are not needed is highly expensive in tires.

LUBRICATING A SPRING SEAT

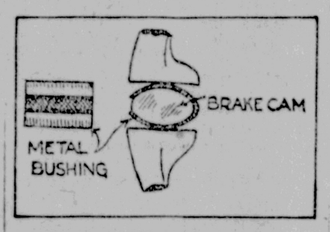

Many Car Owners Neglect to Turn Up Grease Cup Provided—Little Attention Necessary.

Many present-day cars are fitted with springs mounted on seats that oscillate. These spring seats usually have some means of lubrication, but many car owners never take the trouble simply to turn up the grease cup provided. While it is not necessary to turn the cup each day, it is advisable to give this part a little attention now and then. In cantilever suspensions the center bearing of the spring should be well oiled. Usually this bearing operates on a small steel shaft, extending out from the frame. In some cases a tube running transversely of the frame is used, either a grease cup or an oil hole will be found.

REPAIRING OF BRAKE SHOES

When New Parts Cannot Be Obtained Excellent Substitute Found in Piece of Steel.

When brake shoes are worn, it is the usual custom to replace them with new parts, but if these new parts cannot be obtained, an excellent repair can be made by bending a piece of soft steel

to fit around the cam. This should be about 1-32 inch thick, the same width as the brake shoe, and should be bent to fit snugly over the cam. When the wheel is in place this bushing cannot drop out of position, and so there is not much danger of it coming off.

TO RETRIEVE MIRED AUTOS

Device Serves as Shovel to Make Path for Stuck Wheel—Then Acts as Track for Car.

A novel device for retrieving mired cars is one which serves first as a shovel to make a path for the stuck wheel and then as a track on which the car may be run from the hole. In addition a wheel attachment is provided whereby the device may be used as a wrecking truck when one wheel is disabled. This consists of a metal trough in which are a series of tire cross chains which provide traction. One end is beveled to form a shovel edge and the other is metal capped, carrying a bearing and a wheel attachment and serving as a handle.

TROUBLE FOUND IN BATTERY

Corrosion of Terminals Decreases Power of Current for Lights and Ignition of Fuel.

If trouble develops in the battery, which upon examination is found to be up to normal and yet is not delivering enough current to furnish lights nor spark enough to ignite the fuel, the basic fault will very possibly be found in corrosion of the terminals. When the terminals are covered with a hard green deposit, no current can flow. Sometimes this deposit is so hard that it takes a chisel to remove it.

DUFFY LEWIS OF WORLD SERIES FAME NOW HITTING 'EM OUT FOR UNCLE SAM

George "Duffy" Lewis, former left fielder for the Boston Red Sox, who gained considerable fame for his great batting in the two world series against the Phillies and the Brooklyn Nationals, is in Uncle Sam's service. His home runs were the talk of the country and Duffy's big black bat was always slamming them out during the world's series days. No pitcher either on the Phillies or the Dodgers would trust Duffy at the plate and did his best to foil him. It wasn't possible to hold Duffy down, and he held the highest batting average on the club.

DIAMOND NOTES

* * *

"Greasy" Neale, the Reds' outfielder, is stinging the ball hard.

* * *

The Memphis Southern league club has taken on Joe Slattery to play first base.

* * *

* * *

* * *

Miller Krueger will make Otto Miller extend himself behind the bat for the Robins this year.

* * *

Pirate fans are interested in Willie Stumpf, who, if he makes good, will cover short for Pittsburgh.

* * *

Jack Powell's comeback stunt with the St. Louis Browns does not seem to have been much after all.

* * *

Joe Dugan, the Athletics' young shortstop, is another Jack Barry, in the opinion of Quaker baseball sharps.

* * *

Dave Shean, who will play second base for the Red Sox, is not a Jack Barry, and is notoriously weak at the bat.

* * *

Manager Griffith still is looking for a catcher to round out his staff, but has his eyes cast in no particular direction.

* * *

Harry Wolfe, former Pirate shortstop, but better known as a Duluth player, has been sold by Dreyfuss to Minneapolis.

* * *

David Owl, a full-blooded Cherokee Indian, whose home is in North Carolina, has been elected captain of the Springfield (Mass.) college nine.

* * *

Camouflage is quite popular these days. Some ingenious pitcher will soon be painting league balls so that they look like atmosphere.

* * *

The Cardinals have a young catcher named Benton. He is a powerfully built youngster and may land a regular berth with the St. Louis club.

* * *

Benny Kauff is said to be longing for the khaki. His call in the draft is not due until late in the summer, but he is said to be contemplating an enlistment.

* * *

Bates, former third baseman on the Philadelphia Athletics, tied the score for the Camp Dix team when they played the Princeton Aeronautics recently.

* * *

Larue Kirby, who was disposed of by the defunct Muskegon club to St. Joseph of the Western league, is now in charge of a hand grenade detachment at Camp Custer, Mich.

* * *

Bert Blue has failed to impress Manager Jennings of Detroit as being ripe for major league work at first base, but Leo Dressen has come up to every promise so far and Jennings is highly pleased with the former St. Paul Player as successor to George Burns.

PART OF WAR EQUIPMENT

Baseballs, footballs and other athletic paraphernalia have been made a part of the regular military equipment of American soldiers sent overseas.

The athletic division of the war department commission on training camp activities is endeavoring to furnish each company going to France with a complete box of athletic goods.

CATCHER GIBSON IS NOW ARMY CAPTAIN

George Gibson, the veteran catcher, who enjoys the distinction of being the only big league ball player with a son in the allied service, has himself enlisted and now is at Camp Zachary Taylor, near Louisville, where he has been made captain of a field battery. No sooner had he reached camp than he began to organize a ball team, and he hopes to make a good showing against other camp outfits and professional clubs.

OUTFIELDERS IN BIG DEMAND

Peculiarly Fitted for Duties of Soldier in Present War—He Is Lighter on His Feet.

Outfielders are in great demand along the battle front, and the garden keepers if the big leagues may find themselves specially sought after when the next call for troops is issued.

So says a letter from Tom O'Hara, the veteran center fielder who has for three years served gallantly in Canadian platoons, and many Canadian and American soldiers have made the same remark. The outfielder is peculiarly fitted for the duties of soldiers in the present war. He is lighter on his feet and faster in motion than the men who play the other positions, therefore specially adapted for the work of "going over the top." Best of all, the outfielder has always been trained to make the sort of throws that are useful in pegging hand grenades.

WHEN, HOW AND WHERE BOYS OF 21 MUST REGISTER.

WHO MUST REGISTER—All male persons (citizens or aliens) born between June 6, 1896, and June 5, 1897, inclusive, except officers and enlisted men of the Regular Army, Navy and Marine Corps, and the National Guard and Naval Militia while in Federal Service, and officers in Officers' Reserve Corps and enlisted men in Enlisted Reserve Corps while in active service.

WHEN—On Wednesday, June 5, 1918, between 7 a. m. and 9 p. m.

WHERE—At office of local board having jurisdiction where the person to be registered permanently resides, or other place designated by that local board.

HOW—Go in person on June 5 to your registration place. If you expect to be absent from home on June 5, go at once to the office of the local board where you happen to be. Have your registration card filled out and certified. Mail it to the local board having jurisdiction where you permanently reside. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your registration card for the return of your registration certificate. Failure to get this certificate may cause you serious inconvenience. You must mail your registration card in time to reach your home local board on June 5. If you are sick on June 5 and unable to present yourself in person, send some competent friend. The clerk may deputize him to prepare your card.

INFORMATION—If you are in doubt as to what to do or where to register, consult your local board.

PENALTY FOR NOT REGISTERING—Failure to register is a misdemeanor punishable by imprisonment for one year. It may result in loss of valuable rights and privileges and immediate induction into military service.

SAUGERTIES.

Saugerties, June 1.—George B. Ohley, John Carnwright and Fred Van Voorhis motored to Utica today.

Miss Mildred Hill of Jane street has returned from the Benedictine Sanitarium where she was recently operated on.

The Saugerties Boy Scouts, who went to Rhinebeck on Decoration Day to participate in the parade and athletic games, captured four out of the five events, and came home with a fine prize, a Red Cross outfit, which is now on exhibition in Van Buskirk's pharmacy window on Main street.

Oscar Erhler of New York city is visiting his mother on East Bridge street.

Mrs. James of Springfield, Mass., is visiting her daughter, Mrs. William Whittaker, on the South Side.

A number of members of Emanuel Chapter, No. 517, O. E. S., will visit Clinton Chapter in Kingston tonight.

Mrs. M. M. Baker and daughter, Florence, are guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. Lazarus, of Main street.

Mrs. Helen Nestlen of Athens spent the past few days with relatives in town.

The wedding of Miss Rose Johnson and James Reynolds, both of the South Side, will take place at St. Mary's Church Sunday afternoon, June 2, at 3 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Gaston Wilbur of New York city visited relatives here on Decoration Day.

Mrs. F. L. Rudd and Mrs. Emma Fullerton of New York city are at their summer home, "The Locust," on Barclay Heights, for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hallenbeck and daughter of Cambridge, N. Y., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Byron Hallenbeck on Ulster avenue.

Miss Bristol of New York city spent the past few days with Mr. and Mrs F. E. W. Darrow of West Bridge street.

Mrs. William Mattes of Paterson, N. J., is visiting her father, John Dietrich, on Main street.

Miss Florence Sternberg of Elm street has gone to Washington, D. C., where she has secured a position.

Memorial Day in Saugerties was observed by a suspension of business and church services in the various churches. A short parade from the high school to Mountain View, Lutheran and St. Mary's cemeteries, by J. R. Tappen Post, G. A. R., escorted by the Sons of Veterans, Camp Fire Girls, high school girls, the Red Cross Societies of Saugerties and Malden, C. E. Hamlin Uniformed Rank, K. of P., Exempt Firemen's Association, Washington Hook and Ladder Company and R. H. Snyder Hose Company. F. E. W. Darrow was grand marshal and Washburn Bros. Co. Band and the Cols. Fife, Drum and Bugle Corps furnished the music.

Home for Mr. Woodpecker.

A hollow log with a small hole made about half way up from the bottom, with a top made of a piece of bark and a small platform nailed just below the hole, will serve very well for the home of Mr. Red-Headed Woodpecker or Flicker.

Would Have Had It Come Double.

Gertrude coaxed so often for a dog that she was finally promised one. When her birthday came her wish was gratified. She was asked how she liked the dog. "Oh," said the youngster, "it's fine, but I was hoping he would be twins."

How Floating Dust Causes Fire.

Spontaneous combustion is caused, so the chemists tell us, by floating particles of coal dust or other inflammable material jostling and clashing against one another until the friction they set up raises their temperature to the ignition point. If this explanation is correct, it would appear as if such fires could be prevented by perfect ventilation. Such, however, is not the case, for ventilation may actually help to bring about fire by spontaneous combustion. Air facilitates oxidation, really fanning the warm dust into a blaze. Keep air damp and quiet to avoid fire.—Popular Science Monthly.

Great Weapon Is Laughter.

In the posthumous story, "The Mysterious Stranger," which Mark Twain did not see fit to publish during his lifetime, Twain expresses impatience with the degrading use of humor when turned toward trivial things. "Your race in its poverty," he makes Satan say, "has unquestionably one really effective weapon—laughter. Power, money, persuasion, supplication, persecution—these can lift a colossal humbug—prod it a little, weaken it a little, century by century; but only laughter can blow it to rags and atoms at a blow. Against the assault of laughter nothing can stand."

Reassuring Thought.

One of our eminent biologists announces that one pair of rats, if left undisturbed, will multiply to 37,000,000 in two years, but the reassuring reflection is that they almost always seem to be disturbed.—Ohio State Journal.

Ill-Timed Comment.

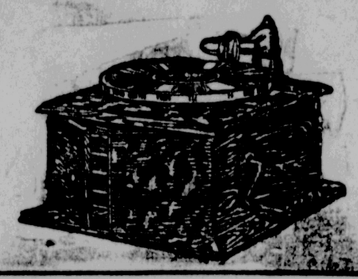

Dean Ingo's suggestion at Oxford that St. Paul instructed women to cover their heads in church out of consideration for the "feelings of the angels" recalls Sir Henry Brackenbury's story of that apostle's limited knowledge of the sex, as expounded by a famous Brighton clergyman. After detailing the sufferings of St. Paul by shipwreck, imprisonment, etc., the preacher added, while his own wife sat immediately below the pulpit: "But St. Paul never had the greatest trial to which man can be submitted, for he was never married."

Who Knows.

Mankind is proud of the beelike ingenuity and accuracy with which it pursues many of its activities; but we cannot be sure that the main result of our labor is not something as remote and unsuspected by ourselves as its service to the spring flowers is by the bee. We do not always foresee the reactions of our most careful enterprises; and, while the bee working among the spring blossoms may recommend us modesty, the wind which has its own indiscriminate but none the less effective system of fertilization, calls us to hope.

IMPORTANT NOTICE
To All Telephone Users

On June 3rd we will be obliged to discontinue answering requests for the "time of day."

In the Hudson Division alone 21,500 of such requests are made daily. The answering of these calls requires the operator's services and the use of the equipment.

We have gladly furnished this special service in normal times. War conditions, however, have greatly increased the demands for NECESSARY SERVICE which makes it imperative that telephone facilities be conserved in every possible way.

The present supply of transportation, labor, raw material and equipment is only sufficient to meet the demands of the Government and of industries either directly or indirectly connected with the prosecution of the war. It is therefore becoming more and more necessary to reduce non-essential services of every kind.

The telephone service is necessarily affected by this general condition and its less essential uses must also be restricted.

We are sure our patrons will realize the importance of cooperating with us in this respect.

THE OUTLAY AND THE NEED

Though the individual may sigh over the money he must spend to secure ordinary comforts in these times and look back regretfully to days of relative cheapness and easy abundance, the Government can look back and make even more startling comparisons between its necessary outlays now and in former times. Toward the end of the war of 1861-5 the Treasury at Washington was spending money at the rate of about a billion dollars a year or $2,750,000 a day. Such expenditure was then regarded as stupendous and was indeed without precedent in the country's history, but it was a mere bagatelle compared with what is and must be spent now on a far greater undertaking. We read of a present actual expenditure by our Government of no less than sixty-five millions a day and of future necessary expenditures at the rate of thirty-four billions a year or more than ninety-three millons a day! It takes the breath away and one is inclined to ask why must such things be? The answer is pointedly and briefly made in the following passage from the President's recent address to Congress.

We are not only in the midst of the war, we are at the very peak and crisis of it. Hundreds of thousands of our men, carrying our hearts with them and our fortunes are in the field, and ships are crowding faster and faster to the ports of France and England with regiment after regiment, thousands after thousands, to join them until the enemy shall be beaten and brought to a reckoning with mankind. There can be no pause or intermission. The great enterprise must, on the contrary, be pushed with greater and greater energy. The volume of our might must steadily and rapidly be augmented until there can be no question of results. All that is to be accomplished, gentlemen, money must sustain it to utmost.

GERMAN MAN POWER

The release of the greater part of the German army on the Russian front is of itself an insufficient explanation of Germany's apparently inexhaustible resources in man power. That these resources are enormous appears to be more evident now than even during the earlier days of the great and determined drive beginning on March 21. The total losses of Germany since the beginning of the struggle in August, 1914, have been estimated by the Germans themselves at nearly four and a half millions. Such figures have led some observers on our side of the line to believe that the German army is being destroyed at an unparalleled rate and that its speedy exhaustion is inevitable. If so, what is the explanation of Germany's continued offensives on a vast scale and her seeming recklessness in the sacrifice of men?

Several contributing explanations have been offered. One is that no less than 700,000 new conscripts are rounded up every year from the ranks of German youth nearing military age. Another is that a great part of the four and a half million losses have been recovered through the patching up of the wounded and the checking of disease by marvelously ordered and highly scientific methods. In former times the deaths from sickness among soldiers far outnumbered the dead in battle but this is not true of modern armies. One would naturally expect this continuing restoration by Germany to be offset by similar recovery on the part of the allies; but, if the German figures in this connection are reliable, the sick rate in the Teuton armies during the past year has been only one-tenth of one per cent, which means, as comparisons of figures will show, that where the Germans lose one man from sickness the Allies lose at least three and perhaps even four. It is impossible to believe that the German science of surgery, medicine, sanitation and nursing is so immensely superior, but such is the claim put forward. A third contributing explanation is the alleged fact that Germany is already drafting the subject races now in her power. Indeed, it is asserted that Germany has long planned to maintain her reserves both by saving the sick and by employing the man power of conquered countries.

That the Germans would do the latter as soon as possible has long been feared if not confidently expected, and this is one reason why the collapse of Russia was regarded as such a heavy blow to the cause of the Allies. That they are already conscripting subject races seems to be indicated by figures published in the April number of a German publication, Das Neues Europa, those for the first time including losses of Polish, Russian, Lithuanian and Finnish soldiers as well as of native Teutonic troops. Whether or not Germany is as yet doing on any considerable scale what she will undoubtedly do in so far as she is able both now and in the future, there seems to be much to support the view of the French writer, Andre Cheradame, that the German army has grown larger instead of smaller during a long period.

GERMAN CHURCH UNFURLS FLAG

Service Flag With 28 Stars Unfurled at Memorial Day Service in the Spring Street German Lutheran Church.

Union Memorial Day services in the Spring Street German Lutheran Church Thursday evening were attended by a large congregation. There was special music, the services opening with the singing of Luther's battle hymn, "A Mighty Fortress is Our God." Prayer was offered for our country, those in authority and our boys in the service and the exercises throughout were very impressive. A service flag, 8 by 12 feet, was raised in the church, where it will be displayed in future on one side of the altar with the Stars and Stripes on the other side. No special collection was taken but the usual collection amounting to $16.10 will be given to the Red Cross. The congregation of the Church of the Redeemer united in the service with that of the Spring Street Church. The principal address by Pastor Schmidtkonz was as follows.

We meet this evening to celebrate Decoration Day. It gives me pleasure to welcome the members of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer who unite with us in this solemn celebration. It is proper that those who belong together go together and worship together at such an occasion as this, that brotherly love and confidence may prevail and be maintained among us.

Decoration Day is the finest and most solemn day of all our national days. It is not a day for fun and pleasure. It is a memorial day, and as such should be patriotically and religiously observed. This day is set apart to the memory of that great army of men who fought and gave their lives for their country. Our country can never pay the debt it owes to these men. They have left us a priceless heritage. Let us see that we are worthy of it.

We decorate with flowers and blossoms of May the graves where our they first decorated our nation's annals with the beauty of their devotion.

Sailor brave and soldier true
We will find a wreath for you
Where you lie so still and low
In the land you guarded so.

Like everything else holidays undergo a gradual change in spirit and observance. In recent years the Memorial Day idea has taken larger proportions. North and south, the blue and the gray unite in the same celebration. And why not? In the land of Washington and Lincoln one flag, one people is our motto and watch word. The real aim of such a celebration as this is to do honor to those who have founded and preserved our union, to keep alive our national principles and to foster true patriotism.

Our country will never cease to honor the men who saved the nation. There are few now, and every year their ranks grow smaller. We respect them while they are with us. The graves of their dead comrades we strew with flowers and year by year as these mounds increase in number we strew more flowers. But not only do we place flowers on those hallowed spots which are marked by flags, but we leave a wreath upon the graves of our own dear ones who have gone before, and this is well.

We celebrate Decoration Day in the midst of a new conflict. It is fitting, therefore, that a new seriousness mark our observance of this day of commemoration. We ought to celebrate this day in the spirit of earnest consecration and wait upon God in humiliation and prayer, beseeching him that he may forgive our sins and short-comings as individuals and as a people and praying for our nation in this fiery trial of war.

Let us not be confident of our own strength and not trust in our own sufficiency and might, because as Luther says in his Battle Hymn: "With might of ours can naught be done, soon were our loss effected." Let us humbly and devoutly acknowledge our dependence on Almighty God and implore His aid, protection and guidance. He is "our refuge and strength, a very present help in time of trouble." "A mighty fortress is our God, a trusty shield and weapon; He helps us free from every every need, that hath now o'ertaken."

Today we shall honor not only the heroes of the past but also those who at this hour are fighting even greater battles in our behalf. The Lutheran Church of America has given generously of her sons to this country in times of conflicts. I cannot now sufficiently honor the brave soldiers of Lutheran extraction who fought for independence, who fought in support of our country when rebellion threatened its destruction, and who took part in all other wars in which our country has put the loyalty of its citizens to the test. Our Lutheran Church yields to none in the quality and sincerity of her patriotism. The facts of history show and prove her loyalty.

There are today between 190,000 and 200,000 Lutheran men with the United States army and navy. They have gone out from our congregations. Prayers are going up for them from many homes and many churches that God would be with them, hoping that they may return safely.

The three Lutheran Churches in our city have 77 men in the service of our country. The Livingston Street Lutheran Church, 23; the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, 26; and our dear old Spring Street German Lutheran Church 28. This is indeed a fine showing. Our Lutheran Churches may be smaller than some other parishes in the city, but our loyalty and love of country is not smaller. We are willing to help our country in every way and our young men are ready to serve their country to the best of their ability during this war.

We are proud of our boys. They belong to us by reason of the tender ties of home and church. They have grown up in our midst and have been reared and educated in our homes and churches; they have attended our divine services and stood at the communion altar with father and mother, sister and brother and neighbor, they were known as honest, reliable, faithful, industrious boys, and they have now gone forth in obedience to the call of duty. They looked fine and strong and brave and manly as they marched away under the benediction of the parting tears.

The 28 young men of our church now in military service are John E. Weber, Hermann Woelfsersheim, William Marks, Fred Schwenk, William Henninger, Fred Menge, Henry Thiel, Carl Baer, Edward Weber, Arthur Gill, John Mayer, Carl Kohler, Albert E. Marks, Albert Hasselmann, Edward H. Plattner, John G. Schmidt, William J. Woerner, Christian Melbert, Harry E. Wieber, William Nagele, Paul Thiel, John A. Reinhard, John C. Otto, Albert Salzmann, Henry Muench, Carl Roenn, Henry O. Roenn, William Werner.

These are our boys. We love our boys. We pray for them. We think of them. We wish them well. God be with them in the trenches, on the battle-field, yea even in the hour, if that hour must come. "When the shadows fall and the dews of death are on their brows."

I now accept this beautiful banner with high appreciation to our Ladies' Aid Society, which presented it. I dedicate this service flag, blossomed with 28 stars in honor of our 28 sons, whose heroism this flag commemorates.

May God—our God, protect
And save our boys.

Ashore for a Day.

For three weeks it had rained continually, so in a certain camp on the Mexican border they had dug a deep ditch around their camp to drain off the water. One night the rain stopped its downpour, much to the relief of the soldiers, so the next day a soldier asked for leave to visit a nearby town. This is the way he asked for his leave: "Captain, may I have shore leave today, sir?" It was granted him.

GOOD EATING.

Anybody who is fortunate enough to have a ham to boil should use every caution to have it well cooked and well seasoned for ham is ham these days.

Soak the ham overnight and in the morning put to cook covered with sweet cider. Into the kettle with the ham add some leaves and root of celery, an onion stock with half a dozen cloves, a dozen peppercorns, a couple of bay leaves, and lacking cider, a cupful of vinegar and three tablespoonfuls of brown sugar added to cold water. When the liquid comes to a slow boil, let the kettle be set back where it will just simmer until it is done. The time allowed for cooking will depend upon the size of the ham. If it is overcooked and falls to pieces when cut it is ruined. Cool the ham in the liquor in which it was cooked. Skin the ham, spread with brown sugar, dot with cloves and bake in the oven until brown. Serve hot or cold cut in wafer-like slices. A dish fit for an epicure.

Rice and Sultana Croquettes.—Pick the stems from a cupful of sultana raisins; wash a cupful of rice and add three cupfuls of milk; cook until the rice is tender, adding a half teaspoonful of salt. When tender, add the yolks of two eggs, one-fourth of a cupful each of sugar and butter and a little spice; mix well and set aside to become cool. Form in balls, dip in egg, roll in crumbs and fry one minute in deep fat. Serve with

Orange Sabayon Sauce.—Beat one whole egg with two yolks until thoroughly mixed; add half a cupful of sugar and beat again. Add half a cupful of orange juice and the juice of half a lemon. Set over boiling water and cook until it thickens slightly. Turn at once into a cold dish.

Casseroled Calves' Hearts.—Fry an onion in a few slices of bacon; roll four calves' hearts in seasoned flour and brown them all over. Put in a hot casserole, add a cupful of stock, a shredded pimento, and half a teaspoonful of mixed spices. Cover the dish tightly, then bake for two hours. Serve garnished with the bacon.

KEEPING THE HOME FIRES BURNING

At the closing of the series on Plain Talks on War Topics in St. James's Methodist Episcopal Church on Sunday night Dr. Baragwanath will have for his subject "Keeping the Home Fires Burning." Like the rest of the series, it will be a "plain talk." Reference will be made to subtle German propaganda, and the influence of the pacifists—the Stokeses, Jeremiah O'Learys—by the way he was brought to Kingston by pro-Germans to tell us the truth—the La Follettes, and certain newspapers that are more German in their sympathies than they are American.

The preacher will suggest what must be done by us to give all possible backing to the splendid American soldiers who are fighting our battles in France and Flanders, where the big "push" threatens the freedom of the world. We have arrived at "the peak and crisis" of the great war. Miss Freer will sing "Keep the Home Fires Burning" and the congregation will be asked to join in the song.

MAHONEY FEELS LIKE A SPRING CHICKEN

Saving All His Pay and Expects to Be a Millionaire When He Returns—Except For Rain and Mud All is Lovely.

Mrs. T. Mahoney of No. 36 Shufeldt street, has received the following letter from her son, Private George T. Mahoney, Company I, 14th Engineers:

PRIVATE GEORGE T. MAHONEY.

Somewhere in France on Active Service with the American Expeditionary Force, May 4, 1918.
Dear Mother:

Just a few lines to let you know I am still alive and feel like a two-year old colt. I am getting used like a king and haven't got a kick coming nohow. The conditions are better than I expected to find and they are much better than many places in the States. Will not be paid until July 15th and then I expect to put $60 in the army bank for a starter and $10 for each succeeding month, so I will be a millionaire when I get mustered out of the army. As I have no money I am sending for a few articles which I cannot get over here. The articles requested will be on a sheet of paper and will be signed by my company commander. Do not send anything except what is on the form and approved by the company commander, and this form will have to be put in the package so it can be inspected by the censor at New York. Do not insure anything or send any registered letters.

I did not work today, but did all my washing and mending, also took a bath and I feel like a spring chicken. I am going over and look up Gus Liebig tomorrow and hope I succeed in finding him.

The weather is just the same as ever, that is to say, very rainy and the poor old sun doesn't get a chance to shine hardly at all, but when she does appear over the horizon, this country looms us in its most beautiful scenery and makes a fellow feel like something. The days are warm and the nights are foggy and cold and outside of the rain and mud everything is O. K. Our eats are of the best and get all we can eat and money is useless as there is nothing to buy or no place to spend it. That is all I can say on two sheets of paper, so write soon and I will close hoping everything is O. K. at home and everyone in the best health. With love to all, will close for tonight, from your loving son,
GEORGE T.

PIERPONT HILL IN DANGEROUS SHAPE

The heavy rain storms of the past few days have placed the West Pierpont street hill leading into lower Broadway in dangerous condition. Some time ago the hill was paved with these granite blocks to prevent the roadway being washed out on Broadway every time there was a heavy rain storm. These granite blocks are held in position with cement. Underneath the dirt has been washed out and only the cement is holding the granite blocks in place and preventing them from caving in.

At the present time the hill is in dangerous conditfon and should be shut off from traffic until repairs are made.

Downtown residents noticed this morning that lower Broadway was covered in some places to a depth of nearly an inch with dirt, especially along the car line. This dirt was washed out of the Pierpont street hill during the heavy storm early Thursday morning.

It is understood that the dangerous condition of the hill has been reported to the board of public works.

Another hill that is in bad shape and growing steadily worse is the Hasbrouck avenue hill. This hill every year is going to be placed in good shape but so far the board of public works has taken it out in talking about what they were going to do to improve the hill. At that rate it will be in 1925 before the hill is placed in shape for traffic.

KYSERIKE BOY DIES IN SERVICE

Jerome Terwilliger, in the Navy Since January 1, 1917, Died April 26 in Bermuda Naval Hospital—Expected to Come Home on Furlough.

JEROME TERWILLIGER.

Jerome Terwilliger, late of Kyserike, who was a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Asa Quick, died while in the service of his country, his death occuring at the naval hospital at Bermuda, April 26th of this year, from diphtheria. He joined the navy January 1, 1917, at the age of 19. He was assigned to Newport News for training and on August 3rd sailed on the U. S. S. Wanderer for France; returning to New York March 9.

He wrote a letter to his uncle and aunt stating that the ship he was on went up and down the coast showing other ships the way to go. The letter stated that one night a ship was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine, and that the crew of the ship he was on saved twenty-four men. Ten men of the torpedoed ship were drowned.

On April 7 he wrote another letter in which he stated that he had been transferred to the U. S. S. Arethusa, and that the Arethusa had been ordered to "somewhere" and that he thought that he would be back to New York city in about a month, and probably would be able to come home on a furlough then.

That was the last heard of him until notice was received of his death. He was buried in the Naval Cemetery at Bermuda.

Locomotive Fire Cost.

The cost of kindling fires in locomotives is said to range from 68 cents to $1.14, according to the size of the engine. These figures represent the cost when dry shavings, the cheapest kind of kindling, are used. Multiplied by 63,000, the number of locomotives in this country, the difference between the cheapest and the most expensive kindling would naturally amount to millions of dollars annually.

MEMORIAL DAY IN WOODSTOCK

Memorial Day, in accordance with time-honored custom, Woodstock paid its tribute to the memory of our dead soldiers. This year Memorial Day has new significance and new poignancy. Memories of the Civil War and the Spanish War have dimmed with time, but today's dread is fresh. It brings grim realization to the traditional ceremony. In our thoughts today are not only our own soldiers, but those of England, France and Italy, who are fighting with us, not only those who have died, but those who must die before this war is over.

In the procession were the guns of the Home Guard, Red Cross banners, white robed Red Cross workers and the symbolic figure of the liberty we are struggling to preserve

The speaker, Dr. James Sullivan, of the University of the State of New York, head of the Division of Archives and History of the Department of Education of New York state, departed widely from the traditional speech to give a forceful denial to two insidious form of pro-German propaganda.

1. This is a commercial war. Only people who are of German birth or tinged with German beliefs and ideals can say or believe this, said Dr. Sullivan. The very fact that England entered the war, so promptly, by so doing, giving up the enormous profits she could have made by remaining neutral and selling munitions to the belligerents, gives the lie to this. He showed the German method of provoking war in order to gain new territory that she has indulged in for three hundred years, the present day understanding of this method of hers and the consequent resistance by England and France at the beginning of the war.

2. The Germans are nice, efficient people. Why fight them? Why not let them rule us if they wish? The best answer to this wide-spread German propaganda is this. If German rule is such a beautiful and fine thing, why have so many Germans left Germany to live in America and why do so many German children commit suicide?

J. B. Hoyt, officer of the day, presided at the exercises. Raymond Ford was marshal of the procession. In the procession appeared the Junior Order of United American Mechanics, the Red Cross Chapter and representatives of the Patriotic Service League.

The Memorial Day organization committee secured Dr. Sullivan as a speaker through the publicity committee of the Patriotic Service League

On Italy-American Day the Patriotic Service League requested its members to comply with the request of the Italy-America Society to observe the day. Many members wore flowers as requested and placed the Italian flag with the American flag upon their automobiles.

Saturday evening, June 8, Dr. Jacob G Lipman, director of the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station, will address the citizens of Woodstock, upon invitation of the Patriotic Service League Dr. Lipman is a well-known soil expert. He will probably talk about proper ways of treating the soil, proper use of fertilizers and rotation of crops

FIGHT ON STREET PROVED EXPENSIVE

Wednesday afternoon Policeman James V. Simpson placed Allan MacKenzie, proprietor of the Bonnie Doon Hotel at Rosendale, and Bertram C. Van Zandt of Tillson, under arrest on a charge of staging a fight in front of the United States Hotel on Broadway that afternoon.

This morning they were arraigned before Judge Schirick in police court and entered a plead of not guilty.

Officer Simpson was sworn as a witness and told his story briefly. He said he saw Van Zandt standing outside the hotel when Mackenzie came out and struck Van Zandt in the jaw. The officer then hurried across the street and grasped each man by the arm, While holding them by each arm Van Zandt reached about and tried to hit Mackenzie but was unsuccessful as Officer Simpson held them apart. The officer then escorted them to police headquarters. Mackenzie was represented in court by Attorney V. B. Van Wagonen and told his story of how it happened. He said he had come to Kingston to make some purchases. He was in the hotel waiting for the auto stage to return home in it when Van Zandt came in and invited him to have a drink. In fact Van Zandt grasped him by the collar so insistent was he.

"What was Van Zandt's condition tion?" asked Mr. Van Wagonen.

"Oh, he was drunk," replied Mr. Mackenzie and he went on to state that he went into the bar room with Van Zandt and took a cigar while Van Zandt had a whskey. Then Van Zandt refused to pay saying Mackenzie would pay which Mackenzie refused to do. He caimed that Van Zandt then struck him and went out of the hotel with Mackenzie's hat and he followed him out to get his hat and he got it.

Van Zandt said he had come to Kingston to get a job on the boatyard. He secured a job as a laborer on one of the yards and then went uptown again. He confessed he had a few drinks, the first since Christmas, and claimed Mackenzie had a few drinks with him. According to Van Zandt Mackenzie started the fight.

At the close of the testimony Judge Schirick found both men guilty of fighting as charged and fined each $5 which they paid.

Mackenzie is 69 years old and Van Zandt is 33 years.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Earl Hummel Recital.

Never has there been a time in the history of our country when it has been as necessary as now to conserve the youthful musical talent of the land as it is today, when our musical artists of draft age are being called to the colors, despite their talents. Some day within this generation we shall come to peace, and then we shall want and need these new youthful musicians for we shall have learned as never before the real significance of good music. So it behooves those of us in Kingston, interested in our country's best future to do all we can in the cherishing and aiding of our own talented young violinist, Earl Hummel. On Friday evening of next week Earl will give his annual violin recital at the First Presbyterian Church, and while he will be ably assisted he will of course be the chief soloist of the evening. He will play the Preludio to Bach's Sixth Sonata for the violin alone, a form of music very rarely ever heard in this city. He will also play the entire concerto No. 22 by Viotti and one of the famous Sarasate Spanish dances. The tickets are fifty cents and Kingstonians should see to it that the church auditorium is filled, for Earl's sake. The full program will appear in a later issue of The Freeman.

SONG FESTIVAL HELD FRIDAY

The patriotic song and musical festival presented at the Orpheum theatre Friday afternoon and evening under the auspices of the New York State Division of Four Minute Men, drew a large audience and seemed to please them all. Thomas J. Comerford, chairman of Kingston's Four Minute Men, presided and addresses were made by him, Secretary Thornberry of the Y. M. C. A., Frank R. Powley, and Mayor Canfield. Sergeant Eaton also gave a patriotic talk. Between the addresses music, both vocal and instrumental, was rendered by the visiting artists.

MEMORIAL DAY IN ROSENDALE

The Decoration Day parade held at Rosendale proved to be a very successful event. One of the pleasing features was a large turn out of the employes of the Mark M. Konski shirt factory, led by Mrs Lew E Conklin and Miss Mildred Christiana, who was dressed to represent "Liberty." The rest of the members were all gowned in white, wearing white veils and carrying an American flag. The group were encircled in red, white and blue bunting, creating a very favorable impression along the line of march and receiving great applause. The parade was headed by Washburn Brothers' Band of Glasco, and a detachment of New York state troops stationed at Stone Ridge.

BENEFIT CONCERT.

Miss Delta Boice and Pupils to Aid Red Cross.

All who were so-fortunate as to attend the exceedingly artistic performance given by the pupils of Miss Delta Boice at the opera house last summer for the benefit of the Company M comfort kit fund will be more than delighted to know that Miss Boice's pupils with an added attraction, will give another similar exhibition at the opera house this year for the benefit of the Ulster County Chapter of the Red Cross. The date set for this charming entertainment is Friday evening, June 14th., and Miss Boice announces that some forty pupils will participate in the program which will include some twenty numbers The "added attraction" will be Miss Boice herself who will give three solo dances. There will be two performances a matinee and an evening performace, and the entire proceeds will be for the Red Cross Muller's orchestra will furnish the music, and Fred Van Etten will be pianist for Miss Boice.

There will be three altars outside the church and the procession with the Blessed Sacrament will march to these altars In the procession will take part all the church societies and all the school children The procession will end in the church, where at the main altar the Rev Francis Lesniewski, celebrant, will give benediction with the Blessed Sacrament.

Why Road Oil is Delayed.

The board of public works has received many inquiries relative to road oiling by residents who are wondering when the street in front of their homes is to be oiled for the summer. The board has been notified that all applications for road oil must be made to the state government, who in turn forward the application to Washington where it is acted upon. This accounts undoubtedly for the delay in shipments. As fast as the road oil is received by the city it will be spread on the streets to be oiled.

"Home Day" Banner Makes Stir.

The appearance of a banner in the "Home Day" parade in Poughkeepsie Decoration Day bearing the inscription "We are the boys that were driven away by the Chamber of Commerce but we have come back to our home, sweet home," stirred up Mayor Butts, several of the board of aldermen and the Chamber of Commerce of that city.

Masquerading

By Vincent Perry

(Copyright, 1913, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Chester Hall carefully arranged his skirts as he settled in the big comfortable chair among the palms, took a powder puff and mirror from his vanity bag and cooly powdered his nose. After making quite sure that his hair was on straight and his ear-rings were not coming off, he put his neatly slippered feet out, displaying more than a foot of silk hose, and sat back, fanning himself contentedly. Although from all appearances he was the personification of serenity, a fire of resentment burned within him. He was an idiot to have allowed the boys to persuade him to come to the masquerade in that costume, he thought. Masquerading as a female in college theatricals was all right, but it was a different thing at a dance. For the first time in his career he was experiencing what it was to be a wallflower, and it more than galled him.

If only he were not such a good impersonator and had not a reputation as such to keep up! If he hadn't deceived every girl in the place it would not have been so awkward, but things had gone so far that he wouldn't unmask under any circumstances. Believing he was a girl, none of the girls would dance with him, and the boys were in on the joke and wouldn't waste a dance on him Besides, he didn't care for a dance with a boy; what pleasure would there be in that?

But the most galling part of it all was the presence, or the expected presence, of the girl he had been waiting months to meet. When he thought of that the fanning stopped. If he had known she was going to be there a million dollars would not have tempted him to appear in that costume. He had wanted to make a good impression the first time they met, and if he was introduced to her as he was she would think at once that he was an idiot and would have nothing further to do with him. Her letters would stop, and everything would be over Even her brother Bob, his chum and roommate, would not be able to fix it up, he was sure. What kind of friend was Bob, anyway, to let him come dressed as a girl, and not tell him Murial was going to be there until they arrived and it was too late to back out? But he couldn't feel bitter toward Bob, for it was through him he had got into correspondence with Murial, and her letters had been the most interesting part of his college life. If he could get away without revealing who he was it would be all right, but he was anxious to have a look at Bob's sister before he left. If she was anything like her picture she was a beauty. Apparently she wasn't on the floor, for the position he had taken gave him a full view of the ballroom, and he was sure he would recognize her the minute his eyes lit upon her.

"Who Are You?"

The music was wonderful and Chester could hardly keep his feet still. Oh, what would he have given to have had that two-step with Murial. If that air kept up he couldn't keep off the floor much longer, he thought. There was no partner about, but if some one didn't come and ask him to dance he would get out and do a solo.

A faint cough beside him caused him to look up. A very slender young man dropped into the seat next to him. As their eyes met Chester dropped his; he had to remember his role. But the one glance had been sufficient to size up the young man. He was a gawk and it was his first time out, Chester could see. The dress suit looked out of place on him, and he felt out of place in it. He was too shy to ask any of the girls to dance—but how he could stay out of it with music like that, Chester couldn't see. Here was his opportunity to have a dance and at the same time help the gawk get over his shyness.

He rose, smiled in the boy's face, and said, as coyly as he could:

"Please be my partner for the next dance."

It wasn't the proper thing for a young lady to do, but Chester was sure the gawk wouldn't know that. He had seen shy boys in his life, but this one was shyer than he had ever imagined a boy could be. Although Chester put out his arm invitingly, the fellow stood in embarrassed bewilderment. The music was as entrancing as ever, and Chester couldn't stay off the floor any longer. Before the young man could stammer refusal he was whirled onto the floor, and he had to dance to save his feet from being trampled. After Chester had stepped on his toes a number of times, the gawk seemed to realize what was expected of him, and before the second time around he was dancing very well.

So far so good, Chester thought. But it was his duty to break this young fellow into the methods to employ with the fair sex. With this in view he started to chatter gaily in the sweetest effeminate tone he could assume, but the boy wouldn't talk, and Chester was exasperated. The music stopped and Chester applauded loudly for an encore. His partner stood like the gawk Chester thought he was, and he felt like kicking him. When they started out on the encore he thought of another course of action. It would be a shame to let such a good dancer become a fixture.

"You chump! Why don't you talk?" he said in his natural voice. "If you expect to get in soft with the girls you'll have to talk a little. Girls hate to dance with a block of wood, even though they can dance as well as you can. You are a splendid dancer, and if you could only talk the girls would take you up in no time."

The look of horror on his partner's face made Chester feel like stopping for a good laugh, but instead he explained: "I am a boy dressed up as a girl, and I'm having the time of my life. Why didn't you wear a fancy costume?"

"You didn't seem to be enjoying it much." The boy spoke for the first time, and apparently he was suffering from a cold.

"I was a little in the dumps when you came, I'll confess," Chester laughingly answered. "I wish I had worn another costume. I'm too good at female impersonating, that is the trouble, and I was shut out of all the dances, because none of the girls are on to it that I am a boy. Besides, the Only Girl is here tonight, and I wanted to make a good impression. I won't be able to meet her now because of this costume."

"Why not?"

"Because she doesn't know I'm such an idiot. You see, I have never met her. I have just written to her, and got letters back. She's my roommate's sister, and the finest little girl on earth."

"I'd like to meet her."

Chester gasped. The gawk was learning fast. Before he could speak again the encore had ended and his partner had led him back to the palms. The boy sat down in the chair, apparently exhausted.

"You silly thing, get up. I'm supposed to be a girl, and—" but Chester finished with an exclamation of surprise. A curl was hanging down from the "boy's" head. The straight black hair was a wig.

"You're a girl!" Chester gasped.

"And you're a boy," the girl laughed. "Who are you?"

But before the girl could answer Bob Merrifield, Chester's chum, came from behind a big palm and introduced them.

"So you are Murial, and heard all I said about you," Chester groaned, after he recovered sufficiently to find voice.

"Yes; but what does it matter?" Murial smiled. "This waltz is going to be a splendid one. I have my curls tucked up, so if you will let me lead you to the floor I'll promise to talk a little."

Interesting Relics of Stone Age.

Fifteen human skeletons were unearthed near Osaka, Japan. This is considered the birthplace of Japanese civilization. Of the relics of the Japanese stone age, discovered by Professor Okushi, nine of the skeletons were in perfect preservation, all bones being intact. It rarely happens, according to scientific records, that so many perfect skeletons are discovered in one place. Among indications that people of that period lived on uncooked food is the fact that upper and lower teeth are evenly worn down. Decayed teeth are not found. Some of these skeletons stand seven feet high. Skeletons were found in a lying position, with knees drawn up. Without doubt, these people belonged to the stone age in Japan —30,000 years ago, at least. While making the excavation, stone implements, earthenware and two copper arrowheads were found. It is thought this find may establish a link between the stone and bronze ages in prehistoric Japan. This discovery revolutionizes archeological theories of prehistoric Japan.—East and West News.

Our Potato Column

Article No. 5.

LOSE SEVEN BUSHELS OF POTATOES EVERY DAY.

What Happens When the Tops of Potatoes Are Killed Prematurely.

For everyday when the tops of potatoes could grow but do not, the grower loses seven bushels of potatoes per acre.

Whenever the growing season is lessened by even two weeks through attacks of potato beetles and flea beetles, the acre loss is very nearly one hundred bushels—potatoes which the grower might have had had he protected his investment in the growing of potatoes.

For every week that is lost during the growing season, because the tops are killed by early blight, or by tipburn, or by the late blight, which is followed by rot, the loss to the grower is nearly 50 bushels per acre. This is generally more rather than less, for often the entire crop rots. Then the grower loses not only what he might have had, but some of the potatoes which he actually did have.

The figures are taken from results secured at two widely separated agricultural experiment stations. At one of these stations, in Minnesota, they commenced digging the crop the very last of July, and measured the acre yield, by weeks, until the last of August. The last harvest was 215 bushels greater than the first harvest. The crop gained at the rate of slightly over seven bushels per acre per day, an increase which is absolutely lost when the vines die early.

At the Rhode Island experiment station a similar experiment was tried, with results in very close agreement. The first harvest was July 11, when the yield was at the rate of 162 bushels per acre. The last of the potatoes were dug 32 days later, when the tops were entirely dead, and the yield at that time was found to be 393 bushels per acre—a gain of over seven bushels per acre per day.

Spraying Prevents the Loss.

Spraying the potato vines against bugs, beetles and blights prevents this great loss. It kills the beetles and keeps the blights from even getting started. It makes larger yields by prolonging the growing season.

Fertilizers have much the same affect. A poorly nourished plant can no more resist disease than can a poorly nourished man. Spraying protects the potato growers' investment in fertilizer, and thus gives what is really double protection.

As long as potato vines stay green the yield continues to increase, even if most of the leaves are dead. It is important to know this, for in spraying potatoes the temptation is always to omit the last spraying. The vines are often lodged between the rows, and it seems as though more damage would be done by the sprayer in passing through the rows than would be done by neglecting to spray. Yet if the last spraying simply wards off the blight and keeps the vines healthy until complete maturity, a few days at best, it pays enormous returns on the spraying investment.

HOW BORDEAUX MIXTURE WAS DISCOVERED.

Bordeaux mixture, the standard fungicide spray for potato blights, was discovered back in 1887, by a Frenchman named Millardet.

Professor Millardet had a vineyard at Bordeaux, France. He also had neighbors, and these neighbors had boys. There is but one sequel to conditions such as these and the sorrowful fact must be admitted that the boys raided the vineyard, and that the professor was robbed of the fruits of his labors.

To prevent the robbery, Professor Millardet sprayed his grapes with a mixture of copper sulphate (bluestone or blue vitrol) and lime, the latter material being used to make the copper stick, and the copper sulphate put in to make the unwary boy who ate of the sprayed grapes repent of his sins.

History does not tell us how successful this thief preventing and thief detecting device may have been, but it does relate how the professor noticed that the vines sprayed with this material very soon became thriftier than the others, and were much less injured by fungus diseases. Later on he tried the spray on potatoes, and found it wonderfully effective—so much that in all great potato sections it has become customary to spray with either commercial bordeaux or prepare the same at home, for the prevention of both the early blight and the late blight or rot.

HOW DO YOUR YIELDS COMPARE WITH THESE?

The ten-year average acre yield of potatoes, as reported by the United States department of agriculture, for some of our larger potato-growing states is as follows:

Maine 206 bushels per acre
Minnesota 99 bushels per acre
Wisconsin 97 bushels per acre
New York 94 bushels per acre
Virginia 90 bushels per acre
Michigan 80 bushels per acre
Pennsylvania 83 bushels per acre

Think of the days of toil and labor spent in cultivating low-producing fields! In these days of war and labor shortage might it not be better to reduce acreage and grow more potatoes per acre?

NORTH ROUNDOUT MIXUP IN COURT

Joseph Baliszewski Found Guilty of Calling Mrs. Rose McCullough Bad Names—It Cost Him $10.

After a lengthy trial in police court this morning Judge Schirick found Joseph Baliszewski guilty of calling Mrs. Rose McCullough of 82 Third avenue bad names and fined him $10 which he paid. There is likely to be civil suits pending also.

From the testimony as developed in court this morning Baliszewski, who resides in Poughkeepsie, owns the adjoining property to the McCulloughs. The other day, on May 4th to be exact, he came up from Poughkeepsie and drove a stake in the sidewalk between the two properties. Then he took either an axe or a blacksmith's sledge, the evidence on that point was conflicting, and knocked down part of the boundary fence.

While he was doing that one of the McCullough girls telephoned to police headquarters and Officers Walker and Sachloff hurried to the scene but things had quieted down by then and no arrests were made.

Later Mrs. McCullough swore out a warrant for Baliszewski's arrest.

This morning she and her daughter testified Baliszewski had called her vile names and knocked down the fence.

On the other hand he claimed that he had seen Judge O'Reilly and was advised to knock the fence down as it was on his property and that was the reason he had done so. He denied calling Mrs. McCullough unprintable names and his evidence was corroborated by his wife and a neighbor's girl who resided three houses away and who was in her yard while the rumpus was underway.

It also developed that there had been trouble over the boundary line before.

Newton H. Pessenden represented Mrs. McCullough and John M. Cashin appeared for Mr. Baliszewski.

Optimistic Thought.

The best rule is that which has fewest exceptions.

DIFFICULTIES OF TRANSPORT IN FRANCE

A motor transport train stopping for supplies while passing through Noyon in the Oise sector on its way to the front. The snow-covered roads made transportation of supplies a difficult problem.

TAUNTING JOLTS FOR KIND FOLKS

Picking Up Passengers Does Not Always Work Out as It Should.

EXPERIENCES OF MOTORISTS

Trials and Tribulations of Men Who Sought to Aid Those Not Fortunate Enough to Have Cars to Ride to Town in.

There are reasons why motorists do not pay more attention to the casual pedestrian whom they might pick up from the safety zone along the street car track and carry with them to the city center. Advices to motorists to travel with all seats filled as a means to assisting in transporting the people at all hours, and particularly at busy hours, has been heeded again and again by motorists who have all too often regretted their kindly feeling later, says Detroit Free Press. In a gathering of motorists at a club recently some incidents were related of the trials and tribulations of men who had decided to take the advice and aid those not so fortunate in having cars in which to ride at the time.

What's the Graft?

One motorist related an incident which made him hesitate about stopping to pick up a pedestrian. He said that he came to a full stop at a safety zone and asked a man standing there if he would like to ride downtown. The man turned round with a sneer and said, "What's your graft, anyway?" That man was left where he stood with no car in sight and with his ears burning from the roasting he received within the few seconds it took for the motorist in question to get his car under way again.

Another motorist told of picking up a respectable business man who seemed in a hurry as he ran down a side street to the main car line. The business man climbed in gladly, but the moment he took his seat beside the driver settled back into that seat and placed his boots squarely on the dash of the car, where he left long scratches which remained until removed by that car owner. That driver said that he had stopped for no pickups except soldiers and women and children since that time.

Car Was No Good.

Another motorist had a car in which he took much pride and which was running particularly well at the time he picked up a man. That passenger by invitation immediately started to belittle the car of the man with whom he was riding, and said that that particular make had never been any good and that the company would never be able to make a good car if in business a hundred years. The driver was one of the partners in the company manufacturing the car he drove, so held his temper, but lost no more confidence in his product by picking up critical business men without cars of their own, but with decided opinions on the subject with which they had no experience.

So it went on, and man after man of the party showed plainly by his own experience that the dear people who do not own a motorcar care little for the opinion which the real motorcar owner may have of them after their boorish acceptance of a kindness well meant but oftentimes not repeated.

DANGER IN CRANKING AUTOS

There is always danger in cranking a machine by hand, the more especially if the engine is not working properly, as it may kick even though the spark be retarded. Sometimes it is hard work to start an engine with retarded spark—so here is a little tip: Open the throttle, but leave the spark off; turn the engine over two or three times, then turn on the spark and pull the crank upward, not downward, and you will not be in danger of breaking your arm.—Club News, Keystone Auto Club.

CARE OF ANTISKID DEVICES

Antiskid devices are helpful under certain conditions, but great harm will result from their continued use. Because some devices are noisy there is a temptation to fasten them tightly to the tires. When this is done the extra pressure and the flattening out of the tires causes the cross grips to cut and gouge into the tire. When cross grips become worn, sharp and rough, they should be replaced. Otherwise the tread will be cut and moisture and dirt will do the rest.

Take off the antiskid devices as soon as the necessity for using them has passed. Leaving them on when they are not needed is highly expensive in tires.

LUBRICATING A SPRING SEAT

Many present-day cars are fitted with springs mounted on seats that oscillate. These spring seats usually have some means of lubrication, but many car owners never take the trouble simply to turn up the grease cup provided. While it is not necessary to turn the cup each day, it is advisable to give this part a little attention now and then. In cantilever suspensions the center bearing of the spring should be well oiled. Usually this bearing operates on a small steel shaft, extending out from the frame. In some cases a tube running transversely of the frame is used, either a grease cup or an oil hole will be found.

REPAIRING OF BRAKE SHOES

When New Parts Cannot Be Obtained, Excellent Substitute Found in Piece of Steel.

When brake shoes are worn, it is the usual custom to replace them with new parts, but if these new parts cannot be obtained, an excellent repair can be made by bending a piece of soft steel

to fit around the cam. This should be about 1-32 inch thick, the same width as the brake shoe, and should be bent to fit snugly over the cam. When the wheel is in place this bushing cannot drop out of position, and so there is not much danger of it coming off.

TO RETRIEVE MIRED AUTOS

A novel device for retrieving mired cars is one which serves first as a shovel to make a path for the stuck wheel and then as a track on which the car may be run from the hole. In addition a wheel attachment is provided whereby the device may be used as a wrecking truck when one wheel is disabled. This consists of a metal trough in which are a series of fire cross chains which provide traction. One end is beveled to form a shovel edge and the other is metal capped, carrying a bearing and a wheel attachment and serving as a handle.

TROUBLE FOUND IN BATTERY

If trouble develops in the battery, which upon examination is found to be up to normal and yet is not delivering enough current to furnish lights nor spark enough to ignite the fuel, the basic fault will very possibly be found in corrosion of the terminals. When the terminals are covered with a hard green deposit, no current can flow. Sometimes this deposit is so hard that it takes a chisel to remove it.

George "Duffy" Lewis, former left fielder for the Boston Red Sox, who gained considerable fame for his great batting in the two world series against the Phillies and the Brooklyn Nationals, is in Uncle Sam's service. His home runs were the talk of the country and Duffy's big black bar was always slamming them out during the world's series days. No pitcher either on the Phillies or the Dodgers would trust Duffy at the plate and did his best to foil him. It wasn't possible to hold Duffy down, and he held the highest batting average on the club.

DIAMOND NOTES

* * *

* * *

The Memphis Southern league club has taken on Joe Slattery to play first base.

* * *

* * *

* * *

Pirate fans are interested in Willie Stumpf, who, if he makes good, will cover short for Pittsburgh.

* * *

Jack Powell's comeback stunt with the St. Louis Browns does not seem to have been much after all.

* * *

Joe Dugan, the Athletics' young shortstop, is another Jack Barry, in the opinion of Quaker baseball sharps.

* * *

Dave Shean, who will play second base for the Red Sox, is not a Jack Barry, and is notoriously weak at the bat.

* * *

Manager Griffith still is looking for a catcher to round out his staff, but has his eyes cast in no particular direction.

* * *

Harry Wolfe, former Pirate shortstop, but better known as a Duluth player, has been sold by Dreyfuss to Minneapolis.

* * *

David Owl, a full-blooded Cherokee Indian, whose home is in North Carolina, has been elected captain of the Springfield (Mass.) college nine.

* * *

Camouflage is quite popular these days. Some ingenious pitcher will soon be painting league balls so that they look like atmosphere.

* * *

The Cardinals have a young catcher named Benton. He is a powerfully built youngster and may land a regular berth with the St. Louis club.

* * *

Benny Kauff is said to be longing for the khaki. His call in the draft is not due until late in the summer, but he is said to be contemplating an enlistment.

* * *

Bates, former third baseman on the Philadelphia Athletics, tied the score for the Camp Dix team when they played the Princeton Aeronautics recently.

* * *

Larue Kirby, who was disposed of by the defunct Muskegon club to St. Joseph of the Western league, is now in charge of a hand grenade detachment at Camp Custer, Mich.

* * *

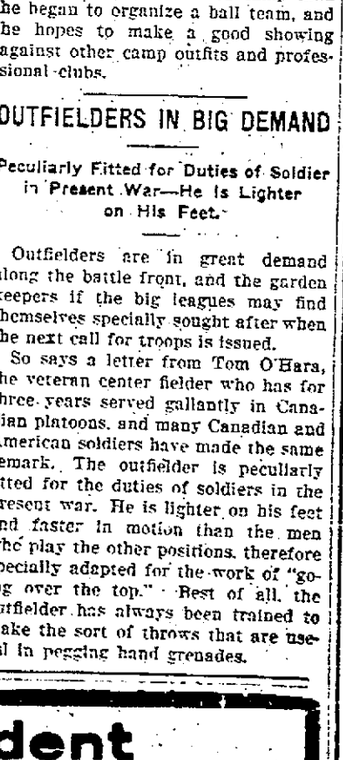

Bert Blue has failed to impress Manager Jennings of Detroit as being ripe for major league work at first base, but Leo Dressen has come up to every promise so far and Jennings is highly pleased with the former St. Paul Player as successor to George Burns.

PART OF WAR EQUIPMENT

Baseballs, footballs and other athletic paraphernalia have been made a part of the regular military equipment of American soldiers sent overseas.

The athletic division of the war department commission on training camp activities is endeavoring to furnish each company going to France with a complete box of athletic goods.

CATCHER GIBSON IS NOW ARMY CAPTAIN

George Gibson, the veteran catcher, who enjoys the distinction of being the only big league ball player with a son in the allied service, has himself enlisted and now is at Camp Zachary Taylor, near Louisville, where he has been made captain of a field battery. No sooner had he reached camp than he began to organize a ball team, and he hopes to make a good showing against other camp outfits and professional clubs.

OUTFIELDERS IN BIG DEMAND

Outfielders are in great demand along the battle front, and the garden keepers if the big leagues may find themselves specially sought after when the next call for troops is issued.

So says a letter from Tom O'Hara, the veteran center fielder who has for three years served gallantly in Canadian platoons, and many Canadian and American soldiers have made the same remark. The outfielder is peculiarly fitted for the duties of soldiers in the present war. He is lighter on his feet and faster in motion than the men who play the other positions, therefore specially adapted for the work of "going over the top." Best of all, the outfielder has always been trained to make the sort of throws that are useful in pegging hand grenades.

WHEN, HOW AND WHERE BOYS OF 21 MUST REGISTER.

WHO MUST REGISTER—All male persons (citizens or aliens) born between June 6, 1896, and June 5, 1897, inclusive, except officers and enlisted men of the Regular Army, Navy and Marine Corps, and the National Guard and Naval Militia while in Federal Service, and officers in Officers' Reserve Corps and enlisted men in Enlisted Reserve Corps while in active service.

WHEN—On Wednesday, June 5, 1918, between 7 a. m. and 9 p. m.

WHERE—At office of local board having jurisdiction where the person to be registered permanently resides, or other place designated by that local board.

HOW—Go in person on June 5 to your registration place. If you expect to be absent from home on June 5, go at once to the office of the local board where you happen to be. Have your registration card filled out and certified. Mail it to the local board having jurisdiction where you permanently reside. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your registration card for the return of your registration certificate. Failure to get this certificate may cause you serious inconvenience. You must mail your registration card in time to reach your home local board on June 5. If you are sick on June 5 and unable to present yourself in person, send some competent friend. The clerk may deputize him to prepare your card.

INFORMATION—If you are in doubt as to what to do or where to register, consult your local board.

PENALTY FOR NOT REGISTERING—Failure to register is a misdemeanor punishable by imprisonment for one year. It may result in loss of valuable rights and privileges and immediate induction into military service.

SAUGERTIES.

Saugerties, June 1.—George B. Ohley, John Carnwright and Fred Van Voorhis motored to Utica today.

Miss Mildred Hill of Jane street has returned from the Benedictine Sanitarium, where she was recently operated on.

The Saugerties Boy Scouts, who went to Rhinebeck on Decoration Day to participate in the parade and athletic games, captured four out of the five events, and came home with a fine prize, a Red Cross outfit, which is now on exhibition in Van Buskirk's pharmacy window on Main street.

Oscar Erhler of New York city is visiting his mother on East Bridge street.

Mrs. James of Springfield, Mass., is visiting her daughter, Mrs. William Whittaker, on the South Side.

A number of members of Emanuel Chapter, No. 517, O. E. S., will visit Clinton Chapter in Kingston tonight.

Miss Margaret Winslow of Brooklyn is at her country home on Barclay Heights for the summer.

Mrs. M. M. Baker and daughter, Florence, are guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. Lazarus, of Main street.

Mrs. Helen Nestlen of Athens spent the past few days with relatives in town.

The wedding of Miss Rose Johnson and James Reynolds, both of the South Side, will take place at St. Mary's Church Sunday afternoon, June 2, at 3 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Gaston Wilbur of New York city visited relatives here on Decoration Day.

Mrs. F. L. Rudd and Mrs. Emma Fullerton of New York city are at their summer home, "The Locust," on Barclay Heights, for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hallenbeck and daughter of Cambridge, N. Y., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Byron Hallenbeck on Ulster avenue.

Miss Bristol of New York city spent the past few days with Mr. and Mrs. F. E. W. Darrow of West Bridge street.

Mrs. William Mattes of Paterson, N. J., is visiting her father, John Dietrich, on Main street.

Miss Florence Sternberg of Elm street has gone to Washington, D. C., where she has secured a position.

Memorial Day in Saugerties was observed by a suspension of business and church services in the various churches. A short parade from the high school to Mountain View, Lutheran and St. Mary's cemeteries, by J. R. Tappen Post, G. A. R., escorted by the Sons of Veterans, Camp Fire Girls, high school girls, the Red Cross Societies of Saugerties and Malden, C. E. Hamlin Uniformed Rank, K. of P., Exempt Firemen's Association, Washington Hook and Ladder Company and R. H. Snyder Hose Company. F. E. W. Darrow was grand marshal and Washburn Brothers Band and the Cots. Fife, Drum and Bugle Corps furnished the music.

Home for Mr. Woodpecker.

A hollow log with a small hole made about half way up from the bottom, with a top made of a piece of bark and a small platform nailed just below the hole, will serve very well for the home of Mr. Red-Headed Woodpecker or Flicker.

Would Have Had It Come Double.

Gertrude coaxed so often for a dog that she was finally promised one. When her birthday came her wish was gratified. She was asked how she liked the dog. "Oh," said the youngster, "it's fine, but I was hoping he would be twins."

How Floating Dust Causes Fire.

Spontaneous combustion is caused, so the chemists tell us, by floating particles of coal dust or other inflammable material jostling and clashing against one another until the friction they set up raises their temperature to the ignition point. If this explanation is correct, it would appear as if such fires could be prevented by perfect ventilation. Such, however, is not the case, for ventilation may actually help to bring about fire by spontaneous combustion. Air facilitates oxidation, really fanning the warm dust into a blaze. Keep air damp and quiet to avoid fire.—Popular Science Monthly.

Great Weapon Is Laughter.

In the posthumous story, "The Mysterious Stranger," which Mark Twain did not see fit to publish during his lifetime, Twain expresses impatience with the degrading use of humor when turned toward trivial things. "Your race in its poverty," he makes Satan say, "has unquestionably one really effective weapon—laughter. Power, money, persuasion, supplication, persecution—these can lift a colossal humbug—prod it a little, weaken it a little, century by century; but only laughter can blow it to rags and atoms at a blow. Against the assault of laughter nothing can stand."

Reassuring Thought.

One of our eminent biologists announces that one pair of rats, if left undisturbed, will multiply to 37,000,000 in two years, but the reassuring reflection is that they almost always seem to be disturbed.—Ohio State Journal.

IMPORTANT NOTICE
To All Telephone Users

On June 3rd we will be obliged to discontinue answering requests for the "time of day."

In the Hudson Division alone 21,500 of such requests are made daily. The answering of these calls requires the operator's services and the use of the equipment.

We have gladly furnished this special service in normal times. War conditions, however, have greatly increased the demands for NECESSARY SERVICE which makes it imperative that telephone facilities be conserved in every possible way.

The present supply of transportation, labor, raw material and equipment is only sufficient to meet the demands of the Government and of industries either directly or indirectly connected with the prosecution of the war. It is therefore becoming more and more necessary to reduce non-essential services of every kind.

The telephone service is necessarily affected by this general condition and its less essential uses must also be restricted.

We are sure our patrons will realize the importance of cooperating with us in this respect.

Ill-Timed Comment.

Dean Ingo's suggestion at Oxford that St. Paul instructed women to cover their heads in church out of consideration for the "feelings of the angels" recalls Sir Henry Brackenbury's story of that apostle's limited knowledge of the sex, as expounded by a famous Brighton clergyman. After detailing the sufferings of St. Paul by shipwreck, imprisonment, etc., the preacher added, while his own wife sat immediately below the pulpit: "But St. Paul never had the greatest trial to which man can be submitted, for he was never married."

Who Knows.

Mankind is proud of the beelike ingenuity and accuracy with which it pursues many of its activities; but we cannot be sure that the main result of our labor is not something as remote and unsuspected by ourselves as its service to the spring flowers is by the bee. We do not always foresee the reactions of our most careful enterprises; and, while the bee working among the spring blossoms may recommend us modesty, the wind which has its own indiscriminate but none the less effective system of fertilization, calls us to hope.

KEEPING THE HOME FIRES BURNING

At the closing of the series on Plain Talks on War Topics in St. James's Methodist Episcopal Church on Sunday night Dr. Baragwanath will have for his subject "Keeping the Home Fires Burning." Like the rest of the series, it will be a "plain talk." Reference will be made to subtle German propaganda, and the influence of the pacifists—the Stokeses, Jeremiah O'Learys—by the way he was brought to Kingston by pro-Germans to tell us the truth—the La Follettes, and certain newspapers that are more German in their sympathies than they are American.

The preacher will suggest what must be done by us to give all possible backing to the splendid American soldiers who are fighting our battles in France and Flanders, where the big "push" threatens the freedom of the world. We have arrived at "the peak and crisis" of the great war. Miss Freer will sing "Keep the Home Fires Burning" and the congregation will be asked to join in the song.

MAHONEY FEELS LIKE A SPRING CHICKEN

Saving All His Pay and Expects to Be a Millionaire When He Returns—Except For Rain and Mud All is Lovely.

Mrs. T Mahoney of No. 36 Shufeldt street, has received the following letter from her son, Private George T Mahoney, Company I, 14th Engineers

PRIVATE GEORGE T. MAHONEY.

Somewhere in France on Active Service with the American Expeditionary Force, May 4, 1918.

Dear Mother:

Just a few lines to let you know I am still alive and feel like a two-year old colt. I am getting used like a king and haven't got a kick coming nohow. The conditions are better than I expected to find and they are much better than many places in the States. Will not be paid until July 15th and then I expect to put $60 in the army bank for a starter and $10 for each succeeding month, so I will be a millionaire when I get mustered out of the army. As I have no money I am sending for a few articles which I cannot get over here. The articles requested will be on a sheet of paper and will be signed by my company commander. Do not send anything except what is on the form and approved by the company commander, and this form will have to be put in the package so it can be inspected by the censor at New York. Do not insure anything or send any registered letters.

I did not work today, but did all my washing and mending, also took a bath and I feel like a spring chicken. I am going over and look up Gus Liebig tomorrow and hope I succeed in finding him.

The weather is just the same as ever, that is to say very rainy and the poor old sun doesn't get a chance to shine hardly at all, but when she does appear it [illegible] this country looms us. In its most beautiful scenery and makes a fellow feel like something. The days are warm and the nights are foggy and cold and outside of the rain and mud everything is O. K. Our eats are of the best and get all we can eat and money is useless as there is nothing to buy or no place to spend it. That is all I can say on two sheets of paper, so write soon and I will close hoping everything is O. K. at home and everyone in the best health. With love to all, will close for tonight, from your loving son,

GEORGE T.

PIERPONT HILL IN DANGEROUS SHAPE

The heavy rain storms of the past few days have placed the West Pierpont street hill leading into lower Broadway in dangerous condition. Some time ago the hill was paved with these granite blocks to prevent the roadway being washed out on Broadway every time there was a heavy rain storm. These granite blocks are held in position with cement. Underneath the dirt has been washed out and only the cement is holding the granite blocks in place and preventing them from caving in.

At the present time the hill is in dangerous condition and should be shut off from traffic until repairs are made.

Downtown residents noticed this morning that lower Broadway was covered in some places to a depth of nearly an inch with dirt, especially along the car line. This dirt was washed out of the Pierpont street hill during the heavy storm early Thursday morning.

It is understood that the dangerous condition of the hill has been reported to the board of public works.

Another hill that is in bad shape and growing steadily worse is the Hasbrouck avenue hill. This hill every year is going to be placed in good shape but so far the board of public works has taken it out in talking about what they were going to do to improve the hill. At that rate it will be in 1925 before the hill is placed in shape for traffic.

KYSERIKE BOY DIES IN SERVICE

Jerome Terwilliger, in the Navy Since January 1, 1917, Died April 26 in Bermuda Naval Hospital—Expected to Come Home on Furlough.

JEROME TERWILLIGER.

Jerome Terwilliger, late of Kyserike, who was a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Asa Quick, died while in the service of his country, his death occuring at the naval hospital at Bermuda, April 26th of this year, from diphtheria. He joined the navy January 1, 1917, at the age of 19. He was assigned to Newport News for training and on August 3rd sailed on the U. S. S. Wanderer for France; returning to New York March 9.

He wrote a letter to his uncle and aunt stating that the ship he was on went up and down the coast showing other ships the way to go. The letter stated that one night a ship was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine, and that the crew of the ship he was on saved twenty-four men. Ten men of the torpedoed ship were drowned.

On April 7 he wrote another letter in which he stated that he had been transferred to the U. S. S. Arethusa, and that the Arethusa had been ordered to "somewhere" and that he thought that he would be back to New York city in about a month, and probably would be able to come home on a furlough then.

That was the last heard of him until notice was received of his death. He was buried in the Naval Cemetery at Bermuda.

Epworth League, 6:30. Topic, "Education the Doorway to Service" Luke 4:40. Leaders, Mrs. S. P. Tinnie, Willie Lapine. Evening worship; subject of sermon, "The Fear of God."

Locomotive Fire Cost.

The cost of kindling fires in locomotives is said to range from 68 cents to $1.14, according to the size of the engine. These figures represent the cost when dry shavings, the cheapest kind of kindling, are used. Multiplied by 68,000, the number of locomotives in this country, the difference between the cheapest and the most expensive kindling would naturally amount to millions of dollars annually.
